TITANIC'S VICTIMS LANDED

Funeral Ship Docks at Halifax With the Dead; Error Causes Burial at Sea of 116 Bodies; J. Bruce Ismay Inquiry Witness.

The Mackay-Bennett, bearing the bodies of 190 victims of the Titanic disaster, docked at Halifax at 9:35 a. m. today.

Owing to a misunderstanding in wireless orders, 116 bodies, many of which could readily have been identified, were buried at sea from the cableship.

J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the International Mercantile Marine at Washington, challenged the Senate Committee investigating the Titanic disaster to make any investigation it might see fit into his conduct at the time the vessel was lost.

HALIFAX, N. S., April 30.—The cable ship Mackay-Bennett, bearing 190 bodies of Titanic victims, after days of suspense and disappointing delays, docked at the navy yard here at 9:35 a. m. today.

Without a moment's delay, the transfer of the bodies, piled in rough coffins or wrapped in canvas, was begun.

John R. Snow, undertaker aboard the Mackay-Bennett, asserted that 116 bodies were buried by mistake because of contradictory wireless orders sent to Captain Lardner. The undertaker said all but a very few of the bodies were fit to keep. Some of the skulls were crushed and arms and legs broken and a few had faces so bruised as to be unrecognizable. But there was not a single body that really needed to be abandoned.

"It was wounds or bruises only that made identity difficult or impossible in only scattered instances," added Mr. Snow. "The cold water and ice acted as preservatives."

Captain Lardner admitted some bodies that were recognizable and others that were not were buried at sea. He said it was impossible to "carry out instructions to the letter." He also declared: "One reason was we only had enough material to embalm seventy. Thirty or forty identified bodies were buried."

The body of an English sailor was the first to come down the gangway, twenty minutes after the first line was tossed ashore, and after that the grim procession continued for hours.

In a pile of coffins astern lay the body of Colonel Astor. The crew of the cable ship hauled back the long stretch of tarpaulin, exposing rows of bodies of the Titanic crew, thirty or forty of them. That they fought for life was shown in the postures of arms and legs. Some had attempted to disrobe themselves the better to swim.

The body supposed to be that of George B. Widener of Philadelphia turned out to be that of his valet, King.

The Mackay-Bennett picked up all told 306 bodies, brought here 190, among them only two women, and buried 116 at sea.

Captain Richard Roberts of Colonel Astor's yacht boarded the Mackay-Bennett and conferred with Captain Lardner.

"From the description of the body and effects found on it," said Captain Roberts, "I feel satisfied it is the Colonel's body. I

RUSSELL S. HOLT, WHO DIED, AFTER ARREST, IN HOSPITAL

Says Prayer Would Have Saved Titanic

Rev. James Sheerin Proposes a New Litany Covering Sea Tragedies.

The declaration that prayer would have saved the Titanic and the suggestion of a new litany for the Episcopal church were the features of an address made at noon today at St. Paul's Cathedral by the Rev. James Sheerin, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church of South Boston. Following is the new litany as drawn up by the clergyman:

From building of life-destroying ships and shops, from all cruel construction of railways and mines, from erecting flimsy buildings or frail bridges, from all murdering of human beings while undermining the earth with tunnels,

Good Lord Deliver Us.

From reckless speeding on sea or land, from all desire to make a record or such pleasure at the expense of the weak,

Good Lord Deliver Us.

"A few prayers like these," said the preacher, "hammered into the heads and beaten into the souls of a thoughtless generation may not be needed by God, but they are needed by the so-called Christian men of the nations who not only control wealth and politics, but loftily assume that they alone are the lawful settlers of the social problems."

SLASHES THROAT AND LEAPS FROM WINDOW

Hugo Hartlevin cut his throat, then jumped head-first from a second-story window at No. 42 Andrew street, Lynn, today, in an attempt to commit suicide.

His right leg was broken by his fall. He had given himself several jabs and slashes in the throat, but had missed the jugular vein. In spite of loss of blood, of his broken leg, of numerous bruises and of his sixty years, the Lynn Hospital surgeons think they can save him.

APPLETONS SUFFER IN NEW YORK FIRE

NEW YORK, April 30.—Fire today broke out in the top floors of the twelve-story Exchange building on West Thirty-second street, and before it was extinguished three floors were burned out, causing a loss estimated at $500,000. The offices of D. Appleton & Co., publishers, were swept by ames, and a dozen or more printing and mercantile establishments were burned out.

PROBING DEATH OF R. S. HOLT

Well-Known Shoe Machinery Man Arrested and Booked as Drunk; Later Dies in Hospital; Father Says He Never Drank

The family and friends of Russell S. Holt, the shoe machinery manufacturer, whose death at the Relief Hospital following an arrest for supposed intoxication, is now subject of an official inquiry, demanded today that the case be probed thoroughly.

The question that the relatives and friends of Mr. Holt ask is this:

"How is it that a young, prosperous, respectable-looking business man, who was never known to be intoxicated, can be arrested in broad daylight on a charge of intoxication, when he is so ill, probably with water on the brain, that he dies in a hospital the next day?"

Captain Joseph A. Sullivan of station 2 submitted the following report to Superintendent Pierce today on the death of Russell S. Holt:

"I beg to report that Russell S. Holt, forty-seven years old, of No. 8 Weld avenue, was picked up on the sidewalk on Winter street, near Washington, at 3:25 o'clock Saturday afternoon and removed to station 2, where he was booked for drunkenness. At 6:30 o'clock he was removed to the City Prison and at 11:30 o'clock Sunday morning he was removed to the Relief Hospital, where he died from oedema of the brain."

Superintendent Pierce refused to discuss the case any further until he had received a report from the medical examiner.

Commissioner O'Meara also awaited report from Medical Examiner Magrath on the autopsy performed today on Mr. Holt.

Russell S. Holt was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Holt of No. 8 Weld street, Roxbury. He was forty-seven years old. He was associated in the manufacture of shoe machinery with his father as J. S. Holt & Co., No. 112 South street. The elder Holt is president of the company. The son was manager.

Today J. S. Holt said:

"I don't wish to blame anyone until I know all of the facts, but I do think that if my son had been properly taken care of last Saturday, he would have been alive today. Russell had not been well for some time, in fact since he had a bad siege of typhoid fever some time ago his heart had been weak.

"But when they said that he was drunk, I knew that they were not telling the truth. I know that my boy was never drunk in his life. He took a drink when he wanted it perhaps, but that was very seldom. There never was a night of his life that Russell did not spend at home or if away on a vacation he spent it where he should.

"The only way that I can account for this terrible blow is that Russell was suddenly seized with an attack of his heart perhaps a worse one than he had ever before had. And whoever arrested him did not pay enough attention to see whether he was sick or drunk.

"When the police did see that he was sick, they sent him to the Relief Hospital and everything possible was done by the doctors there. But it was too late then."

WATER 12,000 FEET DEEP OVER TITANIC

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Captain J. J. Knapp, chief hydrographer of the United States Navy, has stated that the exact depth of the ocean where the Titanic sank was 12,204 feet.

GRANDDAUGHTER OF PRESIDENT ELIOT, WHO IS ENGAGED

Miss Ruth Eliot is to wed Rogers Pierce, member of a well-known publishing firm and a graduate of Harvard.

Cupid has been traveling in the party of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, who is now in China. News was received in Boston by relatives from Rogers Pierce, son of Dr. M. V. Pierce of Milton, and member of the firm of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., to the effect that the young man had become engaged to Miss Ruth Eliot, the granddaughter of President Eliot. No date for the wedding has been fixed.

Pierce is a graduate of Harvard and is about thirty years of age. He has been traveling with President Eliot and the latter's party as Dr. Eliot's secretary. In the party were Miss Ruth Eliot and her mother. It is rumored that the two became deeply attached to each other while ministering to President Eliot during his recent illness at Candy, Ceylon.

Miss Ruth Eliot is the talented daughter of the late Charles Eliot, a son of Dr. Eliot, who achieved some prominence as a landscape painter during his life.

CARPET STRIKERS TO STAY OUT UNTIL THEY GET DEMANDS

By unanimous vote today the 145 men and women operatives on strike at the Roxbury Carpet Company mills for three weeks past, decided to remain out until their demands are granted in full. This includes a 10 per cent wage increase and the reinstatement of three women, said to be unjustly discharged. John Golden of Fall River, international president of the United Textile Workers, with Mrs. Sara A. Conboy, general organizer, addressed the strikers. They assured those on strike of the undivided support of the union.

REPORT 200 BLOWN UP ON LINER

Turkish Steamship Is Sunk by Submarine Mine Off Smyrna, and All but 89 of Her Passengers Are Killed in the Explosion.

PARIS, April 30.—In an extra edition, Intransigeant says the Turkish liner Texas, bound from Smyrna to Mytilene, fouled a submarine mine early today at the entrance to Smyrna. The steamer's bottom was blown out and she sank almost immediately. The newspaper states that 200 ar believed to have been lost and only 89 saved.

The Gulf of Smyrna is one of the finest harbors in the Mediterranean, and Smyrna itself is the principal seaport of Asiatic Turkey. The entrance to the gulf was extensively mined some time ago by the Turkish authorities, in order to protect the port against an attack by the Italian fleet.

The Texas, a vessel of 261 tons net register, was built at Newcastle, England, in 1888. She was at first called the Olympia, then rechristened the Marguerite and finally received the name of Texas.

The name Archipelago American seems to indicate that the vessel traded among the Aegean Sea islands and coasts, the names Texas and American being used to make the vessel popular. A large number of foreign vessels bear American names for that reason.

GARAGE OWNERS ARE SUED BY THE CITY

The city of Boston filed several bill today in the Superior Court against the proprietors of garages to prevent them from depositing sand and oil in the sewers, claiming damage was done to the sewerage system. The parties sued today are the Studebaker Brothers, Cummington and Lawton street; Boston Motor Company, Ipswich street; Winton Motor Car Company, Cummington street; Locomobile Company of America, Cummington and Lawton streets; Matheson Car Company, Cummington and Hinsdale streets. An order of notice returnable next Monday has been issued.

LYNN MAN RELEASED BY LEWISTON POLICE

LEWISTON, Me., April 30.—Mrs. Wallace H. White, Jr., wife of a grandson of Senator Frye, who was assaulted by a burglar at her home in Main street Saturday night, was able to go to the police station this afternoon to see Frank Rose, the Lynn man detained on suspicion of being her assailant. She said at once, however, that he was not the man. Rose was released. The police have been unable to get any clew whatever to the identity of the burglar.

TEN ARE KILLED IN LOUISIANA TORNADO

NEW ORLEANS, April 30.—At least ten persons were killed in a tornado that swept over the northeastern section of Louisiana early today. It centred around Gilbert, where one man was crushed to death by a falling building and eight men working in fields were killed.

SULLIVAN IS NAMED FOR OLYMPIC TRIP

WASHINGTON, April 30.—President Taft today designated James E. Sullivan as the commissioner of the United States to the fifth International Olympic games to be held at Stockholm, Sweden.

The first returns received today giving Democratic figures in the presidential preference election in Massachusetts came from the town of Orleans. It showed this result:

| | |
|---|---|
| Clark | 7 |
| Wilson | 1 |
| Roosevelt | 55 |
| Taft | 26 |

Orleans is a conservative Cape town of 270 voters.

Mayor Fitzgerald this afternoon stated at City Hall that reports he had received from ten precincts in Wards 10, 11 and 12, three of the strongest Republican wards in the city, indicated that President Taft would carry Boston two to one over Colonel Roosevelt. The Mayor said that the Republican vote in the city, based on the ten precincts, would be 30 per cent. heavier than at the last gubernatorial election.

FIRST RETURNS FAVOR TAFT.

Congressman James M. Curley declared this afternoon that from his information, gathered in various parts of the city, Speaker Champ Clark would win in this city over Wilson and he predicted that Clark would sweep the State.

The first returns received today was from the town of West Tisbury in which fourteen votes were cast as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Taft | 7 |
| Roosevelt | 6 |
| La Follette | 1 |

Neither Clark nor Wilson received any votes in this town. West Tisbury is an island off Martha's Vineyard and has a population of 500.

A straw vote of those voting, taken today at Paine, Webber & Company's, showed 35 for Taft and 10 for Roosevelt.

There seemed to be more Taft that Roosevelt talk in Boston, although it was generally agreed in political circles that the fight between the President and the colonel would be close in the State. Politicians had a hard time in trying to get a line on how the vote was being cast in both parties.

In nearly all of the wards it was learned that the name of Mayor Fitzgerald was being written in on the ballot as a Democratic candidate for Vice-President.

There is no name upon the Democratic ballot for the vice presidency and it is believed that if the Mayor succeeds in

Harvester Trust Suit Filed by Government

Charges Against Corporation Are Minute in Detail and Specific in Names.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 30.—Claiming that the International Harvester Company is a combination in restraint of trade; that it has made effective competition impossible; that it has misled the public and dealers regarding its ownership and output, and that it has resorted to unfair trade methods and made inaccurate and misleading statements concerning rival machines and companies, the Department of Justice today filed suit here for the dissolution of the company.

Coming as the climax to several years' investigation of the "Harvester trust" this suit is minute in its details, manifold in its charges and specific in its names, dates and other data.

The modus operandi of the trust is explained in the suit as follows:

"In towns where there is more than one retail dealer defendants have adopted and are now carrying out the policy of giving to each dealer the exclusive agency for a certain well known machine, instead of giving to one dealer an agency for all of the defendant's lines."

In some cases, the Department of Justice claims, the International Harvester Company even used the slogan, "Not made by a trust," or, "Fight the monopoly," on their own goods, so as to stimulate trade in these lines.

SOMERVILLE MAN IN BANKRUPTCY COURT

William H. Ross of No. 37 Laurel street, Somerville, a broker, who filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy with the clerk of the United States District Court today, did not have enough money to pay for the filing of the petition. Ross placed his liabilities at $7,056.49, only $1,000 of which is secured, and no assets. Among his thirty-five creditors there are nineteen judgements in several courts for various sums and unpaid debts on seven promissory notes.

Taft Thought to Have Best Chance in the Struggle of Republicans.

getting 1,000 votes or more that he will be the preferential choice of the Massachusetts Democrats for the office.

Wards 6 and 8 where no attempt is being made to conceal the fact that votes were wanted for the Mayor's vice presidential boom, are expected to give him more than enough to insure his being the preferential choice.

No Paid Workers.

The absence of automobiles and paid workers was one of the striking features of the primary contest in Ward 20. Only in one precinct of the city's biggest ward was an automobile in sight, that being in Precinct 5, where Colonel Peter Donahue was busy bringing out votes for Champ Clark and Mayor Fitzgerald.

The Roosevelt managers and the Taft forces claimed the absence of funds was responsible for the absence of machines and paid workers. It was a fact that the only workers in sight were for the Democratic candidates and these were volunteers.

The polls opened at 6 o'clock in Boston, but in other cities they were not opened until noon and in the towns voting begins later.

The voting of Ward 9 was the lightest in its history. City Clerk James Donovan and John J. Gartland, leaders of the opposing sections, have buried the hatchet. There was no fight in the ward, and as one of the leaders said: "The only pledged delegates on the ballot are for Governor Foss, and as he has withdrawn there is apparently nothing to fight about."

UNPRECEDENTED INTEREST IN THE FIGHTS OF THE VARIOUS CANDIDATES.

Up until 7:30 only thirty-six votes had been cast. At the State primaries last year 142 had been cast at the same hour, and the Ward 9 leaders say they expect less than one-third the vote of the ward to come out.

Democratic leaders in Wards 3, 4 and 5, Charlestown, in the Ninth District, estimated that these wards cast 4,000 Democratic votes with the Champ Clark delegates getting the great majority of those. The Democratic organization as represented through the ward committees is practically a unit for Clark. No work of importance was being done for other candidates. In a section so heavily Democratic the Republican activity was moderate. The machine leaders were working for Taft.

Roosevelt's fight against Taft had its effect in Ward 10, fourteen out of every fifteen ballots called for at the booth on Huntington avenue and Irvington street being Republican up to 9 o'clock. But the voters gave no surface indication of who was the favorite. The tellers also asserted that judging from the showing at that hour, a record-breaking vote would be polled.

In Ward 18 up to 8:30 the vote was light. It was as follows: Precinct 1, 72; Precinct 2, 86; Precinct 3.81; Precinct 4, 96; Precinct 5, 82 and Precinct 6, 97.

A lively interest was shown in Ward 19, due to the Eleventh District Congressional convention. The contestants were Representative William H. Sullivan of Ward 19, John T. Kennedy and William McMorrow. The only Woodrow Wilson candidate on the ballot was Henry F. Burt of Taunton. All of the other candidates are pledged to Foss. Frank J. Donahue is pledged to a preference of Democrats.

More than 1,400 votes had been cast in Ward 21 at 9 o'clock. The vote was divided among the precincts as follows: Precinct 1, 110; precinct 2, 108; precinct 3, 126; precinct 4, 130; precinct 5, 117; precinct 6, 113; precinct 7, 140; precinct 8, 134; precinct 9, 112; precinct 10, 106; precinct 11, 104 and precinct 12, 102.

The ward is strongly Republican, and this year appears to be pretty evenly divided between Taft and Roosevelt. The majority of the ward committee is for Taft, and they have been working hard in his cause, appearing with campaign buttons bearing a picture of the President and a ribbon of red, white and blue.

In Hyde Park the vote was light at the start. Up to 9:15 only 700 votes had been cast in the whole ward. There are 3,000 registered voters, and up to that time, at the last State primaries 1,100 votes had been cast. Roosevelt workers were active during the early hours of the day.

Ward 17, Roxbury, upheld its reputation as a bustling Democratic stronghold in the early morning voting. In the first hours the election officials found little time to rest from their labors of handing out of ballots, and at 7:30 a. m. nearly 900 votes had been cast. Congressman James M. Curley, one of the leaders of the Champ Clark forces, and head of the Tammany Club, which controls the ward, was early about the ward with his aides, getting out the vote.

Congressman Curley predicted a victory for the Speaker throughout the State. Of Ward 17 he was sure, and said that Clark was ahead all the way.

"From reports I have received from the city wards the vote exceeds our expectation, considering the fact that little interest is taken in the Spring primaries and because of the lack of contest in local politics," said Congressman Curley. "I have no doubt in my mind of the outcome in the State. Champ Clark will be returned a winner over Wilson by a good majority.

"I have talked with over one hundred men in Ward 17 today, men of independent thought and action, who have assured me that they voted for Clark.

"The result in Ward 17 will make the Speaker of the House feel proud."

Frank J. Donahue, Mayor Fitzgerald, J. A. Kelliher and George Fred Williams, candidates for delegates at large, received the full strength of the organization, according to leaders.

In Ward 19 the voting was light during the early hours. At precinct 1 only twelve votes were cast, this being about 15 per cent. of the usual vote in the early hours. Precinct 3, Huntington avenue and Smith street, was a trifle stronger, with nineteen votes. Precinct 7, on St. Alphonsus street, led all the others, with thirty-five votes. At a like hour in the last city election over 150 votes had been polled. Other precincts of the ward varied from ten to twenty votes. The ward is strongly Democratic, but less than a dozen votes in all the precincts were Republican today.

A fair vote was cast early today in Lynn. The polls opened at 6 a. m. and close at 4 p. m. The candidates for delegates from the Seventh District are Lynn Fanger of Lynn and Charles C. Cox of Melrose, pledged to Roosevelt; Charles H. Adams of Melrose and Arthur W. Pinkham of Lynn, pledged to Taft.

The Democratic delegates are unopposed. They are Edmund Higgins of Lynn and Frances Tyrell of Chelsea. Higgins is favorable to Champ Clark, who is expected to carry the city. Betting in Lynn favors Roosevelt.

Brookline voters—who are mostly Republicans in that rich town—began balloting at the rate of eight votes to the minute as soon as the primaries opened in the Town Hall at 8 o'clock.

In the first twenty-five minutes they cast 184 votes.

The rich town is split between Taft and Roosevelt. Each side was claiming that it would carry the polls.

Ward 12 Vote Light.

The vote in Ward 12 was light. In many of the precincts less than a dozen had been cast in the first hour. The ward is split. In the Republican precincts a much ler vote was cast.

The early morning vote in Ward 20, Dorchester, was above the normal primary vote, and election officials expected heavy balloting later in the day. In the sixteen precincts of the word, interest was shown from the opening of the polls. In Precinct 5, fifty-eight votes were cast in the opening hour, nearly equalling the record of the city election. Other precincts were above the fifty mark and altogether over 700 votes had been cast in the ward in the first hour.

Workers for Champ Clark and Theodore Roosevelt were early on the ground, although there was little of the excitement of a local contest.

In Ward 24, also in Dorchester and Neponset, a normal vote came out in the early hours. Taft workers were on hand early.

In Ward 19, Precinct 5, at 7:15, fifty votes had been cast, a much lighter vote than last year at the same time.

In Precinct 6 of the same ward, at Cedar and Center streets, seventy-five votes had been cast at half-past seven. In Ward 18, Precinct 5, the Roxbury Court House, eighty-seven votes were cast up to seven thirty. In the last two precincts the vote was practically normal. No workers were at the polls in any cases. Of the ballots in the last named precinct thirty-five were Republicans.

"An unusually light vote was polled in the South Boston wards, during the first voting hour. Not over one-half of the usual vote was cast. The Democratic vote was noticeably light. The Republican workers were out for their candidates."

The eyes of the whole country were turned to Massachusetts today, answering the result of the State's first Presidential preference primaries. Never before in the history of New England has there been such a hot political fight as has been in progress here during the last few weeks.

Both sides in the Republican camp claim the victory, but those who have followed the two candidates in their races through the State are inclined to think that President Taft will be able to secure most of the delegates.

The fight for the delegates to the Democratic National Convention is between Speaker Champ Clark and Woodrow Wilson, Governor of New Jersey.

Many prominent speakers from other States have been doing valiant work in behalf of Clark within the last week.

Clark, it has been found, is especially strong in manufacturing centres. Mr. Clark himself did not come to Massachusetts to participate in the campaign.

The Clark managers have been very active throughout the State and they are confident that Clark will carry all of the delegates. Numerous Clark rallies were held in Boston yesterday and last night. These covered all sections of the city. In the suburbs there were also many rallies in the interest of the Speaker.

The Clark managers saw to it that the cause of their candidate was well put forth in all sections of the State last night, and the entire campaign closed in a whirlwind. Very encouraging reports reached the Clark headquarters in Boston this morning following the close of the campaign, and the managers are predicting an exceedingly large Clark vote.

LEE GETS NEW RICHESON FACTS

Affidavits bearing on the life of Clarence V. T. Richeson, which Attorney John L. Lee hopes to bring back from William Jewell College in St. Louis, are expected to give a startling new turn to the case of the confessed slayer of Avis Linnell.

It became known today that Richeson was not expelled from the college for unfairness in regard to examinations, but as a result of phases of his conduct while a student. Attorney Lee will collect affidavits on this point from former classmates of Richeson at the college. These will also state that in their opinion the condemned man was insane, and they will cite actions upon which they base their belief.

Governor Foss, in his notices to the Pardon Committee of the Executive Council, for the meeting tomorrow, made no reference to the petition for Executive clemency in behalf of Richeson.

If the petition for commutation of the death penalty is not referred to the Council tomorrow, the entire matter, providing the Governor acts favorably, may have to go over until May 8, the day before Richeson is removed from Charles Street Jail to the State Prison to spend the ten days as provided by law before the date set for his execution. It is within Governor Foss' power, however, to call a special meeting of the Executive Council at any time.

As the day set for the execution of Richeson approaches, he becomes more nervous and worried, and to such an extent has he become affected that additional guards have been placed about him in the Charles Street Jail so that any effort to injure himself might be frustrated.

Naturally of a highly nervous temperament, Richeson is so near collapse at this time that he cannot eat or sleep. He is greatly worried about the outcome of his petition to the Governor and Executive Council for a commutation of his death sentence to life imprisonment. Sheriff John Quinn has tried to cheer him with an expression of belief that his plea will be acted upon favorably.

"Richeson's nerves are worn to a frazzle," said an officer of the jail today. "We feel that he will break down. He snaps and snarls at the guards and his cellmate. Butts, without any provocation. We are watching him closely. And we will watch him until he is taken away in ten days more, to be placed in the death house, unless his sentence is commuted before that time.

"It has been a hard strain on us to have Richeson here. After his attack upon himself we have been watchful."

MISS FELICE LYNE, SINGER PRESENTED TO ENGLISH QUEEN

LONDON, April 30.—Oscar Hammerstein has been presented to King George the Fifth by His Serene Highness Prince Alexander of Teck. The occasion was the benefit matinee for the League of Mercy at the London Opera House. It was attended, in addition to the King and Queen, by every member of the social aristocracy that could crowd in.

Oscar was presented to His Majesty in the foyer prior to the performance. The King told Oscar:

"I highly appreciate the efforts you are making. I am delighted to be in your house." Oscar, wearing his Legion of Honor button, replied:

"I am proud to shake the hand of the King of England."

At the end of the garden scene from "Faust," rendered by four Americans—Felice Lyne, Lydia Locke, Orville Harold and Henry Weldon—Miss Lyne was summoned to the royal box by the Queen. Her Majesty said:

"I am delighted with your singing and hope to hear you again. I understand you are half American."

Miss Lyne replied:

"Thank you very much, Your Majesty, but I am all American."

The lobby was filled with ultra-fashionable people. As the time for their majesties to arrive approached the people were asked to stand back a little. This led to one amusing mistake by Lisle Andrews, the American manager of the Opera House. He asked a tall, good looking man to "kindly stand back; the King is coming."

"Yes," smilingly responded the man addressed. "I am here to receive him." The gentleman was Prince Alexander of Teck.

Mr. Hammerstein said to a correspondent in speaking about his meeting with the King: "I can't add anything to what you know. I spoke what I felt. What a fine democratic man the King is!"

Although the royal party carriage had originally been ordered to be ready at 4:45 they remained to the very end of the programme at half past 5, the King, as he was leaving, expressing himself as very much pleased with the charming, beautiful house.

Miss Lyne told a correspondent that she was delighted with the democracy and charm of the Queen who, was very close to being perfectly beautiful.

OPEN TRIAL OF ALLEN OUTLAWS

WYTHEVILLE, Va., April 30.—Trials of the Allen gang began here today with the arraignment of Floyd Allen on a murder charge in the Criminal Court. There is little excitement and there have been no threats either against the six prisoners, who are brothers from Hillsville, Va.—they are charged with shooting up the Carroll County courthouse, killing three persons outright and fatally wounding two others—nor against the authorities who will try them. Nevertheless, the prisoners are strongly guarded, lest an effort be made to free them.

When Judge Walter R. Staples asked the prosecution if it was ready to proceed, J. C. Wysor, senior counsel for the State, announced that the case of Floyd Allen would be taken up and that the accused would first be tried on the indictment charging him with the murder of Commonwealth Attorney William M. Foster of Carroll. This matter being settled the witnesses were excluded and the veniremen called.

Allen had five attorneys to look after his interests. When the venire was called counsel for Allen asked for a continuance upon the ground that several witnesses were not present. Judge Staples ordered the trial to proceed. By noon eight jurors had been accepted.

A QUARTER METER CAUSES MAN'S DEATH

A quarter meter caused the death by gas of Henry J. Hatch, found dead in his bed at his lodging house, No. 21 Stone avenue, today. Hatch went to bed last night, as his position when found indicated, with a newspaper, which he was reading when he fell asleep. Soon the supply of gas was exhausted and the supply went out. Two hours later another lodger, Mrs. Jennie M. Derby, wished to light her gas, and dropped another quarter in the meter. Hatch's gas cock was turned on. When the gas came on again the room soon filled, and Hatch died of gas poisoning. Hatch was thirty-five, married, and the son of Abbott Hatch, a painter, of No. 57 Calumet street, Roxbury.

"LITTLE OLD MUNCIE" FOR MRS. ANTHONY

MUNCIE, Ind., April 30.—Mrs. Charles H. Anthony, of the diamond-heeled shoes, came home this week after her grand promenade down Broadway and across the polished floors of the White House in her gorgeous gowns and slippers. "There's nothing like it," said Mrs. Anthony, referring to her trip through the East. "Washington society is grand, but New York, with its brilliant whirl, is irresistible. But, after all, there is no place like home, and I wouldn't give up little old Muncie for them all."

The Prettiest "Hat in the Ring" Found at Kornfeld's

So Declares Julian Eltinge the Fascinating "Merry Widow."

It happened that a young man of decidedly pleasing features and appearance was passing along Summer street one afternoon this week. So striking was his bearing that nearly everyone on the thoroughfare paused and glanced at him over their shoulders. Reaching the windows of Kornfeld's store, the young man stopped and gazed with admiration upon the beautiful display of trimmed hats, and after a ten-minute inspection he entered the Home of Ultra Millinery. Engaging in conversation one of the saleswomen he proceeded to ask innumerable questions about the hats and to the girl's query as to whether he wished to purchase one, he replied:

"I am not sure, but I think so."

"If you could give me some idea of er—your wife's tastes"— began the young lady; when she was interrupted by the stranger's amused laughter.

"I have no wife," he confessed, still laughing. "I want the hat for myself."

"Oh!" gasped the girl, and then looking at the stranger more closely, exclaimed, "Why, you are Mr. Julian Eltinge, aren't you?"

The actor, for it was he, smiled and said:

"Guilty," and continuing, "You see, I was passing Kornfeld's windows when I was struck by the exceptional beauty of the hats on display. I do not intend going abroad this Summer, and consequently have been on the lookout for hats in this country. I have searched over the greater part of New York for what I want, but without success. I had begun to despair that I should have to cross the ocean in spite of my disinclination, when chance brought me to Kornfeld's.

"I immediately recognized in the trimming of the hats to be found here a certain originality which attracted my attention and I decided that I would break my rule and purchase my feminine headgear on this side for my engagement in Boston.

"The nature of my performance," he went on, "requires me to be very particular in my wardrobe while masquerading as a woman. I try to represent in my dress absolutely the latest and best that the milliner and modiste can devise. My hats are especially designed and the most difficult article of my apparel to get just right. Much must be taken into consideration—much which the ordinary run of milliners know little about. Not only must the shape of the wearer's face be considered, but to match the trimming attention must be paid to the complexion, the color of the eyes, the shape of the forehead and the arrangement and shade of the hair. So you see I would prove a hard customer to satisfy."

The most interesting feature of the whole transaction which followed was the fact that the price was more than half less what he expected to pay, or would have paid had he gone abroad for the same article of millinery. Both Mr. Eltinge and Kornfeld's are to be congratulated.

Women Gain an Ally in Montague Glass

Stuyvesant Equal Suffrage Club Delighted with Writer's Support.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Montague Glass, who writes things about Potash & Perlmutter and the wholesale cloak and suit trade, said things about the anti-suffragist or anti-suffragette which greatly pleased the Stuyvesant Equal Suffrage Club and its guests. Mr. Glass is an out and out suffrageur, if that is the way to call them, the husband of the leader of her Assembly district, and as such is ever ready to raise his voice for the cause.

Mr. Glass said he had not prepared a speech, but he had brought with him some pamphlets, which he wanted to use as a text, and these mostly showed what had been done in the matter of legislation, in the matter of wages and other things in those States where women vote. He read off the list of sociological laws passed in Colorado and supplementing this paid his respects to Mrs. Gilbert Jones, whom he described as the "grand mogul of the antis." It seems that Mrs. Glass was in a joint debate at St. Luke's Church up in her district a week ago and she read off the Colorado legislation list. Mrs. Jones got up afterward and said, "I beg to differ with the speaker. New York has the same laws."

"Now that wasn't true," said Mr. Glass. "Mrs. Jones must have known it if she had ever looked into the matter. That is just the trouble with these antis. They won't speak the truth."

"Woman is a natural mugwump anyhow," the speaker said later on. "That is one of the reasons why politicians do not care to have her vote. Women will vote as they see fit, for what they think will benefit the home, their children and themselves."

RUSSIAN SNUB FOR EXPOSITION BOARD

LONDON, April 30.—It is reported in Russian circles in London that the Russian government is not giving a very sympathetic reception to the invitation to participate in the Panama-Pacific exposition, and that American action with regard to the Jewish passport question has something to do with this attitude. It is even said that an intimation awaits the members of the Exposition Commission here that their projected visit to St. Petersburg might as well be cancelled.

LACONIA TAKES NEW LIFE RAFTS

When the Cunard steamship Laconia left for Liverpool today she carried in addition to her lifesaving equipment for 1,090, four new liferafts accommodating 150. Three of these new liferafts were of the Carley type and one of the Matson type, which recently was tested by the United States government at Fore River shipyard. Captain Irvine received instructions to take a course at least 150 miles south of the regular southerly route on account of the prevalence of icebergs.

The Laconia carried in all 1,225 passengers as follows: 171 saloon, 25- second cabin, 400 steerage and crew of 435.

Among the prominent persons who sailed today on the Laconia were A. A. Booth, chairman of the Cunard line, with his wife and daughter; Lady Carter, wife of Sir Gilbert Carter, ex-Governor of Barbadoes, and child; Louis Kronberg, Eben D. Jordan and Mrs. Jordan, and Captain C. Hamilton, Dr. Henry Christian, former dean of the Harvard Medical School and of the new Brigham Hospital, Brookline; Dr. Thomas F. Leen of the Boston School Board; Dr. Francis G. Peabody of Johns Hopkins Hospital; Dr. George F. O'Day and Dr. John W. Cahill of Worcester.

The physicians make up a party who will visit London hospitals and then go to Oxford, where tey will be the guests of Dr. William Osler. From England, they will proceed to Paris, then to Brussels, Rome, St. Petersburg, Vienna and other places. They will return to Boston, September 17.

Mr. and Mrs. Eben Jordan are taking a pleasure trip and will spend the shooting season in Scotland with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jordan, who will sail later.

The Laconia waited twenty minutes for three passengers who were belated by a late train.

THREE BATTLESHIPS LEAVE NAVY YARD

The battleship Georgia, flagship of Rear Admiral Thomas B. Howard, U. S. N., with Captain W. L. Rodgers in command, left the navy yard today for Hampton Roads. The Georgia was accompanied by the battleships Rhode Island, Captain H. P. Jones, and New Jersey, Captain E. W. Kellogg. The three war vessels have been at the Charlestown Navy Yard since April 20 undergoing minor repairs.

MRS. MACKAY HAS NEW SUFFRAGE COAT-OF-ARMS

NEW YORK, April 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mackay have closed their apartments in the Ritz-Carlton, and with their three children have gone to Harbor Hill, their country home, at Roslyn, L. I. They remain at Roslyn until July 1, when they go to their country place at Stockbridge, Mass., for the Summer. Mrs. Mackay has designed a suffrage coat of arms which she is using on her new stationery. It is her own family crest, of the Duer family, with a white dove of peace perched on the top, carrying a laurel wreath. Floating from the laurel wreath are the words "Votes for Women." The crest is pale blue and white, the suffrage colors of the Equal Franchise Society, the suffrage organization which Mrs. Mackay founded.

DAUGHTER FOR HAUGHTONS

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Haughton are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter at their home in Charles River Village. Mrs. Haughton before her marriage to the famous Harvard football coach was Mrs. Richard Howell of New York.

CHESTER TAKES INDIAN BRIDE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 30.—Last week it was announced that Minnie Cornelius, an Indian princess, a beauty with a brilliant mind, known in America as the Indian Joan of Arc, had been married to a Seymour, Wis., real estate man named George B. Kellogg.

Today at Green Bay it developed that George B. Kellogg is the real name of George Randolph Chester, author of "Get Rich Quick Wallingford."

Mrs. Chester is the niece of the famous old Jonathan Cornelius, lay reader at the Episcopal Mission on the Oneida Reservation, who for fifty years has every Sunday translated from English into Oneida the words of a priest at the mission.

KEITH'S PLAYLET FINE BURLESQUE

"Curse you, Jack Dalton, you'll rue the day you doded muh!"

Sounds familiar? that of any old melodrama? Right. Now imagine a fine burlesque drama complete, scenery, hero, heroine, angry father, snowstorm, shivery music, wronged girl heroine—they are all in the funniest playlet you ever saw—"More Sinned Against Than Usual." It's the headliner at Keith's this week. The actors play the parts with tense seriousness, which makes it very, very funny, and certainly original. Ha, ha! Now to the plot!

Every thriller climax seen in the customary ten-twenty is included in this merry travesty, and as is usual the villian "gets his" in the last act while beauty in distress is given the usual reward. The only difference in this case is that even the "Desperate Desmondized" act of W. H. Ferris in the role of Fludgeon Smith is a skilful take-off on the original thing.

Dick Lynch is the real thing in county sheriffs for this kind of play. May Malloy, with no place to lay her head, also is exceptionally good. But for out and out travesty, Ferris in the part of the villian is a side-splitter, and the fact that he is perpetually shadowed by a violinist playing snake-time music adds to the amusement of the situation.

The piece is by Everett Shinn, and the players at Keith's have so caught the spirit of the humorous little skit that one needs to see the play to appreciate its satire. It will run the week out.

B. A. Rolf, with his musical act, "The Rolfonians," evoked hearty applause and was compelled to respond to numerous encores. Trovollo, in a clever ventriloquist act, also made a big hit. Another good act is that of the Wartenburg brothers in juggling feats; while the three Leightons, Rosaire and Doretto, Tooney and Norman were well received.

Wall Street Depicted in Play at Tremont

Robert Hilliard Makes a Hit as the Broker

"The Avalanche" a Story of a Financier's Hard Luck and Narrow Escapes.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

The drama of Wall Street is never without its familiar figures. These usually centre around the broker who has made miserable investments—and is about to reap the harvest of his sins.

You had all of them in "The Avalanche" at the Tremont last evening, including Robert Hilliard, who proved himself a good actor in spite of his noisy companions in the play. If "The Avalanche" became hysterical at times you have no one to blame but Mr. Hilliard himself, for a modest line on the program assures you that he was one of its authors. The other was W. A. Tremayne. Between the two of them Wall Street was made anything but cheerful.

Not even the good old days of melodrama produced anything more diverting than the chain of miserable situations that convinced everyone but the audience that John Halvern Gray was a social scoundrel. He was an easy victim for the designing widow, whose millions might have made her attractive to anyone but the sturdy and vigorously honorable Gray. It seemed a pity that Mr. Hilliard should have played the idiot so deliberately. Old-fashioned stage devices made him an obvious cad. Integrity counted for little in "The Avalanche" when the evidence was plain that Gray carried on a secret affair with the charming Widow Vaughan. His virtue was useless.

You could scent trouble the moment Gray, to help a friend with a sore finger, wrote a soft note that was to be used in amateur theatricals. There wasn't an atom of doubt that the note would fall into the suspicious fingers of the wife. It did.

For four acts the pretty widow made things merry around the Gray fireside, and she performed so deftly that there was nothing left for the outraged wife to do but pack up and return to mother. And yet Gray was the soul of honor—which was a long time coming to the surface.

Robert Hilliard and Thais Magrane

It was not clearly explained why Mrs. Vaughan had the run of Gray's home. She flitted in and out at all hours and was properly snubbed by everyone. At every visit she left a trail of despair. She was a breezy person, too, and as played by Thais Magrane, was a fresh edition of Mrs. Trouble. She clung to her villiany to the last, which at least made her consistent.

"The Avalanche" was unmistakably melodramatic in its situations. You saw the broker's office during a panic and marveled at the ease with which a hard-working author nearly ruined him here and then saved him by a slight twist of the pen. What you couldn't see during the panic you could hear, for the scene settled itself into a convention of deep-lunged men, and there was not a weakling in the lot. When Gray, in the misery of his inpending ruin, pointed a pistol at his own head, there was ample ground for suspicion that he was planning to get away from the noise.

But the day was saved—and saved by the wicked widow's millions. However, that only led to more complications, for just as Gray planted a kiss of gratitude upon her lips, Mrs. Gray walked into the office. Mr. Hilliard, as an author, was at least generous with his ugly situations.

Mr. Hilliard played Gray like a broker just off the street. There was compensation in the fact that he acted the part intelligently. Miss Magrane made Mrs. Vaughan a woman of luxurious personal charm. The principal relief from her ceaseless prattle was her good looks, which, of course, added to the suspicion that Gray might have fallen into her net. It was a hard position for even an author-actor.

Stella Archer gave Mrs. Gray an outward temperature several degrees below zero. She was a solemn, sombre person, who gazed soulfully toward the gallery when she spoke of her unhappiness. The most sensible man in the cast was Ben R. Graham, who played the family lawyer.

"The Avalanche" was mainly interesting through its multitude of complications, which were simple enough to be easily followed. But it dealt Wall Street a foul blow.

Gaiety Theatre.

"The Belle of the Boulevard" lived up to her reputation at the Gaiety Theatre yesterday and supplied two big audiences with a wide variety of entertainment, made up of fun, music and pretty girls. The quality of the burlesque offerings at the Gaiety seems to improve with each visiting attraction, and in the case of this show it was plain that nothing was left undone to make the audience cheerful and contented. The company that presented "The Belle of the Boulevard" included Snitz Moore, a lively German comedian, and a dozen other well known players.

Scenic Temple.

Several new vaudeville acts, a long list of motion pictures and Lenna Howe's orchestra made up the program of the Scenic Temple yesterday.

Orpheum Theatre.

A program of more than usual merit began the new week at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday. The chief feature was a sketch entitled "The Stick-up Man," showing a certain phase of life on New York's east side. There were a dozen other vaudeville numbers, including a new list of motion pictures.

ELTINGE STARS IN MERRY SHOW

When Sam Weller was begged to beware of widows back in the days of Charles Dickens there wasn't any such widow as "The Fascinating Widow" that's in this city at the present time. The fact is that there isn't any duplicate of this fascinating lady in the world. That is what the audience that filled the Boston Theatre last night thought, it was apparent.

It may as well be disclosed right at the first that the "widow" referred to is Mr. Julian Eltinge, so, of course, there isn't any real widow at all. And that is the peculiar charm of the delightful performance—there is no attempt to delude the audience as to the personality of the star. On the other hand, all through the unique comedy Mr. Eltinge is at great pains to keep the audience reminded that he isn't a widow.

Boston knows "The Fascinating Widow" well. Mr. Eltinge, being a Boston boy, has a large circle of friends here, and they gave him a fine reception last night, forcing him to come to the front of the stage and make a happy little speech.

The bewildering costumes worn by the "widow," and also by some of the real girls in the show, were the wonder of the feminine part of the audience. Mr. Eltinge has some of the handsomest gowns worn on the stage and the delusion he sought to create for the purpose of the play was astonishing. He looked and acted like a—well, like a fascinating widow.

The play abounds in fun that keeps the audience shaking with laughter and there is music which you want to whistle and dancing that calls for encores. The company is large and unusually well selected. Mr. Eltinge is assured of liberal big houses as long as he remains in Boston.

Homer's Odyssey.

Homer's Odyssey, in motion picture form, began its third week at the Tremont Temple yesterday. This picture is attracting wide attention because of its elaborate production.

Howard Athenaeum.

They call it Old Home Week at the Howard because Violet Mascotte and her burlesque company have returned after an absence of six years. The show is new, however, and there were indications yesterday that everybody liked the entertainment.

Premier Theatre.

For the first time at the Premier Theatre the motion picture film showing scenes and incidents connected with the Titanic disaster was exhibited yesterday. This film is probably the most thrilling, in many respects, of any that has been released for some time. It shows among other things the laying of the keel and the launching of the Titanic, Captain Smith moving about on the bridge of the Olympic, a sister ship of the Titanic, and views of the rescue ship Carpathia. The surviving crew and some of the passengers on the Titanic are also shown.

Hub Theatre.

Vaudeville and moving pictures of the latest release made up the new program at the Hub Theatre yesterday. The entertainment measured up to the usual standard.

Globe Theatre.

The liveliest portion of the new bill at the Globe Theatre yesterday was supplied by the Four Newsomes, an acrobatic quartette which appeared to have created new sensations in that kind of work. Another attractive number was given by the Petching Brothers, and was called "The Musical Flower Garden." Besides the vaudeville program there were several motion pictures of exceptional interest and the always popular song review.

HIGHEST TYPE OF VAUDEVILLE ON THE BILL AT NATIONAL

The highest type of vaudeville comedy is presented at the National Theatre this week by Bedini and Arthur, a famous team of comedy jugglers, who keep the audience smiling during the whole time they are on the stage. Their act was appreciated.

Wheeler Earl and Vera Curtis, in their singing and talking act, proved to be a hit. Brice and Gonne, formerly with Gus Edwards, were well received in their act, "Kids Is Kids." An interesting playlet was presented by Murphy, Whitmans and Company. "The Four Rosemary Girls" are seen in one of the finest musical acts ever presented in this city. The Strength Brothers, in an athletic act, and Mlle. Paula on the flying rings, complete an exceptionally good program.

Next Week's Plays.

Lindsay Morison will take possession of the Majestic next week with his Summer stock company, presenting "The Witching Hour."

Christie MacDonald and "The Spring Maid" will come to the Tremont next week for a return engagement.

"Seven Days" will be Mr. Craig's offering at the Castle Square Theatre next week.

Waldron's Casino.

"A Florida Enchantment," by the Big Gaiety Company, was the new attraction at Waldron's Casino Theatre yesterday. It was burlesque of the usual variety.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

The new bill at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday was headed by a farce called "Muldoon's Picnic." There were other attractive features.

South End Theatre.

"Kathleen Mavourneen" was the offering at the South End Theatre yesterday, and there was strong evidence at both the afternoon and evening performances that the popular Irish play still holds interest among the local playgoers. The work of the stock company was agreeable in every respect.

'PRINCE CHAP' AT CASTLE SQUARE

"The Prince Chap," one of Edward Peple's successful three-act plays, by John Craig and his all-star cast at the Castle Square Theatre last evening was received with genuine approbation by a large audience. It is a clean and wholesome play and one that struck a chord of sentiment in the hearts of all with its moments of mirth and pathos. It delights old and young alike.

The story is woven around a big-hearted and ambitious sculptor who goes from New York to London in hopes of bettering his fortunes. There, a dying artist's model comes to his studio and insists on his promise of caring for her little daughter. His sweetheart comes from America and bids him send the little girl away. Upon his refusal, she deserts him for another. He proves an efficient father. His ward grows to womanhood and falls in love with him. After a futile attempt of his old sweetheart, now a widow, to win him back, the play culminates with him falling in love with his ward.

As William Peyton, the sculptor, acting in the capacity of the considerate, though not overindulgent father, John Craig is given plenty of opportunity to display his versatility. He is well supported by Miss Henrietta McDannel and Miss Mary Young, who divide the honors as Claudia, his adopted ward. Miss Madeleine Moore, as the maid of all work, and George Hassell, as the butler, with his cockney accent and absolute inability to see a joke, were very funny.

Shawmut Theatre.

There was a good variety of vaudeville in the new program at the Shawmut Theatre yesterday. The head-line act was given by Walter Evans and his company, who appeared in a dramatic playlet. There were new pictures and illustrated songs.

COLORADO FOR CHAMP CLARK

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., April 30.—The vote of the twelve delegates of Colorado to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore will be cast for Champ Clark. They will be cast for him until he releases the delegation from its iron clad pledge.

This was the overwhelming decision of the Democratic State Convention here yesterday. Any hope that the friends of Governor Wilson had of winning Colorado vanished early in the day, when the delegates met. On the first test vote between Wilson and Clark it was apparent that the Clark men controlled absolutely and were for the Missourian first, last and all the time.

DAILY ADDITIONS TO AMERICAN RELIEF FUND BEING MADE

The AMERICAN'S Titanic Relief Fund is receiving constant additions from the people of New England who are moved to sympathy by the plight of many of the survivors of the disaster. While some of the men and women saved by the Carpathia had ample resources of their own, or were assisted by relatives, scores of others lost practically everything when the Titanic sank. It is to bring prompt and efficient relief to these latter that the fund is being raised.

All contributions should be mailed or handed to the Cashier of the Boston AMERICAN, No 80 Summer street.

JAPANESE ON TRIP TO MAGDALENA BAY

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 30.—Fatsumasuki, who said he was a graduate of the Imperial College of Tokio, and had been sent to Magdalena Bay by his government to investigate the fishing resources and a concession held by a local company, was among the passengers on the steamer Juarez. He declared his business at Magdalena Bay was in no wise connected with any project of his government to acquire a base.

FIND 3,000 PIECES OF GOLD IN POMPEII

ROME, April 30.—Six houses have been brought to light by the excavators in the ruins of Pompeii. One of them was found to contain 300 valuable bronzes. Another, which, it is believed, belonged to a banker, contained 3,000 golden pieces of money, as well as a number of Greek and Latin books.

CLAIRVOYANCE IN ARNOLD CASE

NEW YORK, April 30.—A most remarkable case of what appears to be something like handwriting clairvoyance was presented today when the trial of Bessie Green, accused of writing blackmailing letters to Francis R. Arnold, the father of Dorothy Arnold, was resumed.

Handwriting experts have testified that the letters written to the father of the strangely missing young woman were penned by Bessie Green, who is a colored woman. A great deal of other evidence produced seem to corroborate this charge.

But Bessie Green and her attorney have at least confounded the handwriting experts, by showing that the anonymous letters, in the handwriting said to be Bessie Green's, could be written while the woman was under guard, with no access to pen and paper.

Such a letter was opened in court today, when the trial was resumed, and while the handwriting appears to be the same as that of the blackmailing letters, it is known positively that this letter was not written by Bessie Green, unless she possesses the power to transfer her handwriting to another through some unheard-of thought process.

Not only have letters been written to the court while Bessie Green was under surveillance, but the woman has received letters herself in the handwriting declared to be hers.

Lawyers about the Criminal Court building said today Bessie Green had either beaten the handwriting experts or they had discovered an entirely new physhic phenomenon.

PLAYS THAT REMAIN IN BOSTON THEATRES

"The Case of Becky," with Frances Starr in the role of dual personality, began its second week at the Hollis last evening. The play is presented with all of the luxury of a Belasco production.

"Hanky Panky," which is upsetting attendance records at the Shubert, is now on its second week. It is mixed entertainment that appears to have caught the town.

"Alias Jimmy Valentine" continues its presperous way at the Plymouth. H. B. Warner, by his consistent acting, earns his position at the head of the company.

"The Siren" is nearing the end of its visit at the Colonial. The last week but one of its engagement here was begun last evening.

Hattie Williams and "The Girl from Montmartre" are now on their final week at the Park Theatre. The offering is a French farce supplemented with music.

"Half Way to Paris" entered upon its final week at the Majestic last evening. It is a tuneful offering, with plenty of exhilarating comedy.

THIEVES GET $20 IN CORNHILL BARROOM

Thieves entered the barroom of Henry Grueter in the basement of No. 70 Cornhill early today, knocked the combination knob off the safe in an attempt to enter it, and got away with $20 in cash secreted under the bar. When an employe entered the place today he found the safe in the middle of the floor, where it had been dragged by the thieves. The money in the safe was intact. From the bar the robbers secured $20 in change left for the man who opens in the morning. The police of the City Hall station made an examination at once, but admitted that neither doors nor windows had been forced, and they were at a loss to tell how the thieves got into the place.

MISS MAY C. WELCH IS FIRST CLERK TO MALDEN'S MAYOR

Miss May C. Welch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Welch, of No. 22 Stearns street, Malden, today took up her duties as clerk and stenographer to Mayor George L. Farrell of Malden. To Miss Welch falls the distinction of being the first to hold that office in the history of the city. She was appointed by the Mayor from a large number of applicants. Miss Welch is a graduate of the Centre Grammar and Malden High School, graduating from the latter school last June. She is a remarkably bright girl and substituted at the Federal Trust Company in Boston and afterwards took a permanent position with a Boston law firm.

TAFT SLATE IS CHOSEN IN N. H.

CONCORD, N. H., April 30.—Theodore Roosevelt was bitterly arraigned before the Republican State Convention in session here to-day by Sherman E. Burroughs, president of the convention and formerly a leader of the "progressives." Roosevelt was not mentioned by name, but the references to him were too plain to be lost on the delegates in attendance.

The convention elected the Taft slate of delegates at large.

Mr. Burroughs said:

"Upon hypocrisy and sham, upon cunning and false pretence, upon weakness and cowardice, upon the arts of the demagogue and the devices of the mere politician, no government can stand," declared President Burroughs. "New Hampshire is a progressive State, genuinely and sanely progressive, but New Hampshire is not yet ready to destroy the ancient landmarks, throw to the winds the traditions of a century and surrender the Constitution, with all its sacred guarantees, to the impetuous and imperious will of the 'man on horseback.'

"The brooding spirit of the hills does not find its true expression in the language of the circus and the prize fight. The motto of the square deal and the slogan, 'Let the people rule,' are not impressive when emblazoned on the banners of the Steel Trust and its associated interests. The 'hat in the ring' is not an inspiring symbol to New Hampshire progressives."

MEETS HIS BROTHER AFTER FIFTY YEARS

BRIDGEPORT, April 30.—For the first time in fifty years John W. Canfield of Bedford street and his brother, Josephus B. Canfield, met today at the home of the former. They had not seen each other since the Civil War when John enlisted in the navy and Josephus in the army, both fighting for the Union. Josephus came all the way from Pomona, Kan., having heard that his brother was alive. They lived in Schuyler, N. Y., but were never back to the old home together after the war.

THREE COUPLES IN UNIQUE CELEBRATION

BROCKTON, April 30.—Three couples who were married thirty-five years ago today at the same church and by the same priest celebrated their anniversary today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Barry, one of the couples. The others were Mr. and Mrs. John J. Gallagher and Mr. and Mrs. John W. McGowan. They were married by the Rev. Michael Doherty.

ENDS LIFE AT LODGING HOUSE

An unidentified man who committed suicide by gas early today in the lodging house, No. 1,479 Washington street, left a note of five words:

"Take care of Lizzie Peters."

This note was addressed to M. J. O'Connor, No. 2,180 Broadway, New York City.

In one of the suicide's pockets was a jeweler's box containing a plain gold ring, a wedding ring.

The ring and the note about "Lizzie Peters" lead the police to believe that an unfortunate love affair lies back of the suicide.

The only clew so far to the identity of the young man is in the initials "J. J. M." stamped in his hatband.

DEATH WINS IN RACE FOR LIFE

Death was the victor in a race for life when John Page of Portland, a conductor, who had both legs severed, died at the Massachusetts General Hospital, early today, after a special train had rushed him from Ayer to that institution.

Page fell beneath the cars of his train as it was pulling out of the Ayer station. It was some time before rescuers could free him. A special train was made up and raced to Boston. The hospital authorities were notified by telephone and an ambulance awaited the arrival of the train at the North Station. He was placed on the operating table within an hour after he had been extricated, but the loss of blood and intense suffering were too great. Death conquered before the surgeons were able to attempt to save his life.

SCENES OF GRIEF AND HORROR ATTEND LANDING OF TITANIC DEAD

BODY OF COLONEL ASTOR IN EVENING DRESS, WATCH HANGING BY CHAIN.

have not seen it yet, however, as it is in a temporary coffin with others on the after deck." Afterward he identified the body.

The following wireless message from the commander of the funeral ship Minia which relieved the Mackay-Bennett, was received here:

"Cable ship Minia, via Cape Race.—Midnight:

"If bodies afloat, believe late northern gale swept them into Gulf Stream and carried them many miles east. Have searched to longitude 48.20 between latitude 41.20 and 41.50 and recovered one only; today making total of fourteen, two being unknown, were buried, and believe those on board mostly members of crew. Last two, C. Howel (steward) and L. A. Cartwright. Latter's underclothing marked 'L. C. 145,' apparently a steward.

"MINIA."

Canon Hind, chaplain on the Mackay-Bennett, who presided at the 116 deep sea burials, stood at the rail of the vessel when she docked. He stepped to the pier, being the first to give solace to the stricken.

The work of taking off the bodies was begun at once. Seamen tied ropes around the bodies, the mate in charge shouted "lower away" and the freight was swung from the davit guys to the pier.

As the coffins commenced to appear those on the dock were awakened to a new sense of their grief and the sounds of weeping became loud. As the boxes were placed on the pier other workmen began transporting them to the morgue.

When the bodies were uncovered they were rolled in small pieces of canvas, placed on stretchers and borne away.

The Mackay-Bennett entered the harbor at 8 o'clock and dropped anchor twenty minutes afterward at quarantine, where a representative of the White Star line went aboard.

With an impatience which had been growing for days, the mourners [illegible] saw the ship come to a halt under their eyes and with their dead almost in touch of their hands.

Put Coffins Ashore.

After a thirty-five minute wait at quarantine the vessel finally docked at the navy yard pier. A sigh of relief went up as the ship got under way and warped into the pier. When the lines were lashed captain Lardner gave a sharp command and the boom creaked outward for the work of landing the coffins.

The Mackay-Bennett brought 190 bodies. Captain Lardner said that in all 306 bodies had been picked up, but 116 had to be consigned to the deep because they were beyond recognition. They were wrapped in canvas shrouds, weighted and cast over the ship's rail. Captain Lardner told White Star officials that every body picked up wore a life preserver. Many of them were floating on pieces of wreckage from the liner.

When the first wagon load of coffins left for the Mayflower morgue it passed between lines of bareheaded and silently reverent people. Persons with no further interest in the death scenes than mere curiosity wept.

The chain of vehicles wheeled solemnly through the streets of the north end of the city all day long. Undertakers worked like beavers and their black carts were everywhere.

Only a few hundred came out to see. They had been asked from the pulpits of every church in the city Sunday to keep away from the dock and they followed out the request with amazing discipline.

Gigantic Funeral.

As the vehicles passed men uncovered and soldiers, sailors and police saluted. Every ambulance, hearse and closed vehicle in the city was pressed into service. It was a motley procession. Even picnic wagons were in the line with canopies made of black cambric and oil cloth. Some of the larger vans carried five or six coffins.

Nowhere was there confusion or excitement. The proper order and solemnity attended all phases of the work. Halifax was steeped in the grief of a gigantic funeral. Flags everywhere were at half-mast. The bell on every spire and belfry tolled from the time the death ship was reported at Camperdown Light, at the entrance of the harbor.

The newspaper and magazine photographers and the motion picture men fared badly. The naval authorities threw out a large and vigilant guard and every camera man was pounced on. One motion picture man in a boat off the dock was arrested. Small boats and a launch patrolled the navy yard front and kept everybody 100 yards offshore.

Only those bearing credentials were admitted to the yard. Passes were issued in advance by Captain Martin, the commandant.

The first mourner on the dock was a woman, Miss Eliza Loretta, maid to Mrs. William Augustus Spencer of No. 7 East Eighty-sixth street, New York. The maid and her mistress were saved, but Mr. Spencer, a retired business man, was lost. Although Mr. Spencer's body has not been reported, Mrs. Spencer dispatched her maid here to look among the unidentified.

The Hunt for Bodies.

The story told by Captain Frank H. Lardner, commander of the Mackay-Bennett, is graphic. He said:

"Before we sailed, I had instructions to go out and bring all bodies to port. Owing to the number of bodies found and other conditions, it was not found possible to carry out instructions to the letter, so some had to be buried at sea.

"We left Halifax April 17 in the afternoon. We met fog and bad weather which made progress slow. Sunday morning, during the middle watch, we came within sight of bodies and wreckage. We found an upturned lifeboat and picked up fifty-one bodies. We buried twenty-four of these that evening. One reason was that we had only enough material to embalm seventy bodies.

"We probably buried thirty or forty identified bodies. Some were unrecognizable. On Monday week we picked up twenty-six and waded through a line of wreckage fifteen miles long. We sighted many bodies but darkness was coming on, so we threw out a buoy marker and drifted that night. Then next morning we picked up ninety bodies. Then the weather became thick and in the afternoon we could locate only twenty-nine more.

"They drifted in groups and the bobbing lifebelts which showed white as we approached made the bodies look like sea gulls on the waves. I account for the crushed skulls, broken arms and legs and other injuries by the fact that when the liner foundered the wash of waves pounded the dying passengers against posts and stanchions.

"All day Wednesday the fog was so thick we could not accomplish anything. At midnight Wednesday the weather cleared. We were then able to pick up the wake of the wreckage again. On Thursday last we picked up eighty-seven bodies. Friday we got messages from the cable ship Minia, Captain Decarteret, that she was coming to aid us in the work. We picked up eight more bodies and headed for Halifax Saturday. We made slow time owing to bad weather.

"Our system was to send out small boats, round up the bodies, take them aboard, remove the valuables which were placed in bags bearing numbers corresponding to the labels on the bodies. To sink bodies the Mackay-Bennett's crew used fire grate irons, each weighing 100 pounds or more, which were carried out for that purpose."

116 BODIES BURIED AT SEA BY MISTAKE ASSERTS UNDERTAKER

HALIFAX, N. S., April 30.—Owing to a conflict of wireless messages, some of which contradicted others and were misunderstood by Captain Lardner, 116 bodies of Titanic victims were buried at sea by mistake. With very few exceptions, perhaps less than ten, the bodies consigned to ocean graves were as well preserved as the 190 brought here when the cable ship docked at the navy yard.

Although every effort is being made on the part of the White Star people here to suppress the blunder in abandoning so many bodies at sea, the facts have been obtained on indisputable authority. The discovery that 116 had been committed to the deep and 190 brought ashore [illegible] for the first time that the Mackay-Bennett recovered 306 instead of 205 as had been reported from time to time in desultory messages.

All Bodies Fit to Keep.

According to Undertaker John R. Snow, son of the proprietor of Snow & Co., Ltd., the local firm in charge of the mortuary arrangements, all but a very few of the bodies buried were fit to keep. Young Snow, who was the only undertaker on board the Mackay-Bennett, said some skulls were crushed and arms and legs broken and that a very few had faces so bruised as to be unrecognizable. But there was not a single body that really needed to be abandoned.

"It was wounds or bruises only that made identity difficult or impossible in only scattered instances," said Mr. Snow. "The cold water and ice acted as preservatives.

"I embalmed 106 bodies on the trip single handed. I would be embalming bodies at the outset, when I would receive orders to quit, and then other orders would be to proceed. It is true that the bodies buried were as sound as those aboard, but I think the captain did not understand just what he was expected to do. So many wireless messages came [illegible].

Puzzled by Messages.

"First he would go one direction and then another, and it is my opinion from what transpired that he supposed he was to bury all recovered until a tardy message made the situation clear and all were saved after that.

"We sailed on the Mackay-Bennett from this port on Wednesday, April 17, two days after the Titanic went down with her dead. We met bad weather and lots of ice. We did not come in sight of any bodies until a week ago Saturday night. It was too late to lower small boats that night. There were several big icebergs about us. The ice floe was thick.

"Bright and early Sunday morning the harvest began. One of the first bodies picked up was that of a wee little baby of two years.

"She had flaxen hair and a round face like a doll and she was floating right at our port side. The boys who picked her up said she seemed to be looking up to them appealingly. She is in a little shroud aboard the Mackay-Bennett this minute. If nobody can claim her the ship's crew are going to chip in for the burial and erect a suitable monument to her memory.

Astor in Full Dress.

"Colonel Astor's body was clad in full evening dress and his handsome gold watch was dangling from the chain out of his pocket as if he had consulted it before the final plunge. His body is in a good state. There is no doubt about his identity judging from the effects found on him.

"The body thought to be that of George D. Widener of Philadelphia is badly disfigured. The skull is crushed. Arms and legs of many were broken. They were found floating low. Everybody we hauled aboard had a life belt. I'm not up in longitude or latitude, but I know we had to steam fully forty miles farther northeast of where the Titanic sank before we came on any bodies or wreckage.

"The purser took charge of all the valuables taken from the bodies. I don't know how much the combined jewelry is worth. It runs high, but I did hear them say that the cash from bodies we recovered aggregated $17,000.

"As fast as the passengers' bodies were embalmed they were placed in all of the coffins which we had on hand. When the coffins gave out we bound them in tarpaulin. There are only two women on board and I think probably a dozen or fourteen were buried at sea."

DAMAGE SUITS TO PREVENT MR. ISMAY FROM GOING HOME

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Unexpected and sensational court proceedings held today at the home of Judge Ashley M. Gould, of the District Supreme Court, will prevent J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the International Mercantile Marine, and four members of the ill-fated Titanic crew, from departing for Europe within the next week.

Prospective damage suits against the owning corporation of the Titanic are responsible for the detention of the witnesses to the great sea tragedy, it being claimed that their testimony is material and that should they be allowed to depart a serious delay to justice would result.

The initial suit upon which the proceedings are based was brought by Louise Robins, widow of George Robins, the valet of John Jacob Astor, who lost his life in the wreck. Through attorneys Herbert & Micou she sets forth that her husband was lost through the wrongful acts and negligence of the defendants. The suit is to be filed in the Admiralty Court in New York City.

On the showing made in the petition setting forth these facts, Justice Gould issued subpoenaes for the following witnesses to appear this afternoon before Special Examiner Ralph D. Quinter in the Century building: J. Bruce Ismay, managing director; Joseph G. Boxall, Charles H. Lightoller, Frederick Fleet, lookout, and Harold S. Bride, wireless operator of the Titanic.

DON'T SCOLD AN IRRITABLE CHILD

If Tongue Is Coated, Stomach Sour, Breath Feverish, Give "Syrup of Figs" to Clean the Bowels.

Your child isn't naturally cross, irritable and peevish, Mother! Examine the tongue; if coated, it means the little one's stomach is disordered, liver inactive and its thirty feet of bowels clogged with foul, decaying waste.

Every mother realizes after giving delicious "Syrup of Figs" that this is the ideal laxative and physic for children. Nothing else regulates the little one's tender stomach, liver and bowels so effectually, besides they dearly love its delightful fig taste.

For constipated bowels, sluggish liver, biliousness, or sour, disordered stomach, feverishness, diarrhoea, sore throat, bad breath or to break a cold, give one-half to a teaspoonful of "Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, sour bile, undigested food and constipated matter will gently move on and out of the system without griping or nausea, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

MEXICO MUST ANSWER TO U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The United States will demand an official explanation of why the Mexican government seized thirty American rifles which were sent to Mexico City by the State Department, it was announced today.

This action followed a protest made today to the Mexican government by Ambassador Wilson because thirty of the 1,000 rifles sent to American citizens in Mexico to defend themselves in case of attack were seized by the police, who ordered distribution of arms to cease. Ambassador Wilson sent a long cipher cablegram to Washington, telling of the situation. The arms were shipped into the Mexican capital by reason of an order secured through the influence and authority of President Taft. About 700 of them had been sold and distributed when the seizure by the police occurred.

SEA ROMANCE ENDS IN WHARF WEDDING

The romance of a 3,500-mile ocean journey to be married in America, which was halted for five days by the action of the immigration authorities, ended happily on Long Wharf today for August W. Volk, twenty-seven years, and comely Fraulein Marie K. Vogel, two years the young man's junior. The couple came from Darmstadt, Germany. Volk will study at Tech for a year, and his bride will work as a dressmaker to help him. They came on the Laconia last week.

Beauty—real beauty—is more than skin deep. No cosmetic in the world can give the wholesome color, the bright eyes, the clear, transparent skin that is the natural result of pure blood, proper diet and hygienic habits of daily life.

It sounds easy and it is easy for a woman to have the beauty which health alone can give. A safe and efficient tonic if the blood is weak, thin or impure (Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are especially recommended), the avoidance of foods which will cause eruptions, and regular bathing of the skin. That is all and it is the only way.

Write to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Box 176, Schenectady, N. Y., for a free booklet, "Plain Talks to Women." It is an outspoken but perfectly proper little book and should be read by every woman and growing girl. A free sample of the new laxative "Pinklets" will also be sent you. Should you be unable to obtain Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in your locality they will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE STREET, April 30.—Midday—Copper issues were not in much demand when the Boston market opened and New York weakness was strongly reflected here. Among stocks to sell higher during the morning were Old Colony, Indiana, Lake, Nevada Consolidated, Butte Superior and Algomah.

Indiana advanced more than a point. President Dow has received a telegram from General Manager Edwards which states that heavy stamp copper was found in the mine's drift yesterday. Reports from the Lake received today say the showing is "sensational."

Prices Down When New York Opens.

The tone of the New York market was weak at the opening and most issues sold on a lower range at the start. Baltimore & Ohio was an exception, it going up ⅝ to 110. The most loss sustained by any stock in initial trading was by Canadian Pacific, which opened at 253¼, or 1⅜ under Monday's closing. This stock had been sold freely in London before New York trading began. Steel was ⅛ off at the opening, as was Amalgamated Copper. Atchison sold ex-dividend, opening at 108. Its dividend was 1½ and its closing last night had been 109⅝.

Southern Railway and Erie common were unchanged. Reading was freely supplied and lost ⅛ on its first few sales. Union Pacific lost ⅝, while Utah copper was also weak, declining ½ to 63⅛. Lehigh Valley made a show of strength at the outset, gaining ⅜. The Curb was quiet.

Dealings in Americans in London were on a narrow scale, but support was in evidence. There will be no English stock market tomorrow.

Rio Tintos were down ⅛ at 78⅝.

In the copper metal market in London spot opened at £70 7s. 6d. and futures at £71 5s. Each was off 6s. 3d. The market tone was easy.

Copper Metal Demand and Mining.

The week opened with an increased demand, both domestic and foreign, for copper metal. Exports from the Atlantic seaboard on Friday and Saturday amounted to 1,218 tons for two days and the total for April shipments up to the end of last week was 20,236 tons, or 6,738 less than during the full month of March. The March figures were 27,074, and represented exportations for a period three days longer than the latest April total at hand. Exportation of copper during April has been less than was expected, in view of the big foreign purchases early this year, which were believed to have been engaged for April shipment.

So far as can be learned, there has been increase of refinery production during the current month, and as exports have not been as great as were forecasted it is said a substantial gain in surplus stocks may be revealed at the next meeting of the Copper Producers' Association. According to government foreign commerce tabulations for March, copper exports during that month were 66,384,839 pounds. In March, 1911, the returns totalled 56,887,217. Shipments from this country for the nine months ended with March last amounted to 620,703,794 pounds. In the corresponding period ended with the third month in 1911 the aggregate was 587,510,592. The exports for the nine months ending with March, 1910, totalled 510,457,702.

The copper shipped abroad during the nine months ending with March last was valued at $89,000,000, and the distribution and values is given by the New York Sun in this table:

| Imported to | Quantity. | Value. |
|---|---|---|
| United Kingdom | 81,839,370 | $10,911,551 |
| Austria-Hungary | 35,863,195 | 4,961,136 |
| Belgium | 3,874,259 | 514,084 |
| France | 118,041,649 | 15,316,533 |
| Germany | 157,099,832 | 20,256,265 |
| Italy | 32,840,647 | 4,224,822 |
| Netherlands | 158,337,244 | 20,250,977 |
| Russia in Europe | 9,109,072 | 1,152,173 |
| Other Europe | 7,987,290 | 1,037,440 |
| Canada | 12,443,473 | 1,755,391 |
| Other countries | 1,167,753 | 191,146 |

During March last copper imports amounted to 32,250,693 pounds. In the same month in 1911 the total was 39,466,669.

The Tennessee Copper Company is now, it is stated by Thompson, Towle & Co., producing approximately 1,250,000 pounds of copper a month and 600 tons of sulphuric acid every day. The management now believes that, barring unforeseen difficulties, 1912 will be somewhat over a $1,000,000 year after all costs and deductions have been made.

Houghton (Michigan) navigation was opened yesterday when the steamer North Wave took aboard 2,500,000 pounds of copper. The metal is mostly for export. Another dispatch from that port says Lake is shipping 200 tons of rock showing good copper returns to the Baltic daily.

During April the copper production at the Butte camp was increased considerably and much development in high-grade sections of several mines took place. The Butte camp production for April amounted to 28,929,940 pounds. In March last it was 26,860,650, and in April, a year ago, 20,264,780. President John D. Ryan of the Amalgamated Copper Company, declared in a recent speech in Butte that copper consumption is increasing throughout the world and will continue to. He said that while the present price for the metal is satisfactory, he has no doubt but that it will go higher.

Previous 1st Quarter Steel Earnings.

The lowest earnings ever reported by the United States Steel corporation for the first quarter of any year, was in 1904, when the total was $13,445,232, and the best showing was just before the panic in 1907, when the figures were $39,122,492. The corporation has had enough business to make a fine financial showing for the first quarter of 1912, if prices for products had not been so low.

First quarter earnings for ten years past are tabulated as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| 1902 | $26,715,457 |
| 1903 | 25,068,707 |
| 1904 | 13,445,232 |
| 1905 | 23,025,896 |
| 1906 | 30,634,390 |
| 1907 | 39,122,492 |
| 1908 | 18,229,005 |
| 1909 | 22,921,269 |
| 1910 | 37,616,877 |
| 1911 | 23,519,203 |

The earnings for the last quarter of 1911 were $23,105,115. It is said that among those whom the Department of Justice will call as witnesses in the Government effort to have the United States Steel Corporation dissolved as a violator of anti-trust laws will be former President Bacon of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company, Julian Kennedy, a Pittsburg mining expert, and Joseph F. Cole.

Financial News in Brief.

March gross earnings of the Canadian Pacific were $10,519,319, an increase of $1,718,678, and net earnings were $3,718,401, an increase of $561,836. Gross earnings for the period beginning with July and ending with March last were $95,166,374, an increase of $12,642,298, and net earnings were $31,655,373, an increase of $4,081,274.

The Reading Company reports for March net earnings of all companies of $2,568,235, as compared with $1,480,823 in 1911, and surplus of $1,029,958, which compares with $598,162 a year ago.

Paris bankers have taken $2,000,000 more of St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad bonds. The amount of this company's securities placed in France is $20,000,000. The bonds just sold are part of an authorized issue of $160,850,400, of which $64,964,000 are outstanding.

It is understood that the Reading road will built a passenger station in Jersey City which will compare with the ones erected in New York by the Pennsylvania and New York Central.

Germans say that American loans in their country amount to only $25,000,000, but in Wall street the amount is estimated to be nearer $100,000,000.

President H. C. Pierce of the Waters-Pierce Company says that Standard Oil of New Jersey is trying to destroy his concern and that C. M. Adams, the representative of the Rockefeller company on the former's board, has kept the Standard Oil interests informed, through secret correspondence, of all which took place. Mr. Pierce blames Standard Oil management for the heavy fines imposed upon the Waters-Pierce Company in Texas, Arkansas, Missouri and Oklahoma.

WOMAN REARRESTED ON FORGERY CHARGE

After having her case placed on file in the Brighton court today, Susan Graham, twenty-two, of No. 47 Dwight street, South End, who was charged with forgery, was rearrested for the Cambridge police on a similar charge. Thornton Mutch, twenty-two, of the same address, who is said to be the girl's husband, was arraigned in the same court today charged with forging and uttering checks on the Federal Trust Company bearing the name of A. H. Wheats. Mutch was taken into court from the Massachusetts Reformatory at Concord on a writ of habeas corpus. He pleaded guilty and was sent back to Concord.

DOCTOR HELD FOR THEFT OF AUTOS

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—Dr. Allen F. Gentry, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and a former prosperous West Philadelphia physician, is held by the police, who allege that he is the much wanted "motor maniac" who has stolen hundreds of machines in the past year, and transformed them into vastly different looking cars. In New York, Philadelphia, Trenton, Albany, Baltimore, Washington and other large cities he has been carrying on a high-handed business as daring as the automobile bandits of Paris just brought to bay by the French police.

How much per Year —for Shoes?

SHOE Service, like Salary, Investment, or Income, should be reckoned by the year.

Few people have ever considered this vital point in Shoe buying.

The average pair of fine Shoes ($4.00 to $5.00 grade) will wear continuously about 1280 hours, before re-soling or repair are necessary.

That's about 3 Months continuous Wear, every day for 14 hours per day,—without wearing other Shoes.

Few indeed are the fine Shoes that exceed this, when actual time of Wear is reckoned.

And the $3.50 shoe of the present cannot be expected to average it.

BUT, even if a $3.50 pair did deliver that continuous 3 Months of average Wear, such Shoes would cost you $14.04 per year, for pre-repair Wear.

Now compare this with the 1912 Regal Shoe offer, which is——Six-Months Continuous Wear of Outsoles and Upper Leather (equal to 2560 Consecutive Hours), for $4.50 per pair.

—Just 75 cents per Month (or $9.00 per year), for high-grade, stylish "Regal Shoe" quality and Service.

That fixed minimum of Wear pledged to you in a legal "Bond" which goes with each pair, and is practically unconditional.

Style and Fit of these Shoes you can judge for yourself, before purchasing.

Term of Wear is clearly defined, and absolutely secured to you—in this Bond.

Why, then should you pay $14.04 per year, for $3.50 Shoe average Wear?

—When—

—You can have the "Last Word" in 1912 Fashion, Fit and Comfort, at $9.00 PER YEAR, in the new and Ultra Stylish range of $4.50 Regal "Six-Month" Shoes.

ROOSEVELT OR REVOLUTION

Chapter 8

TO MASSACHUSETTS DEMOCRATS

AND THEIR

Mothers, Wives, Daughters, Sisters

A word before today's balloting.

Your stake is bigger than the Republicans'.

High Cost Living lies more heavily upon you than upon Republicans.

There are more of you among the many who have been raped and robbed by the System, the few crooked hundred and five-hundred-time millionaires, and fewer of you among the raw, red minority who have pillaged the many.

Here is the programme; study it carefully:

If Roosevelt is nominated—he will be if he wins Massachusetts today—Bryan will be the Democrats' champion.

Then will begin the campaign of campaigns of education. That's all we want—education. You, the voters, and your mothers, wives, daughters, sisters, will do the rest.

Now I advise you Democrats to vote today for Roosevelt. Why?

First. It is your right. These politicians tell you that it is not square, sporty! Rot! I have spent a lifetime in all the sports that are the right sort, and my worst enemy never accused me of an "unsporty" act; and I tell you Democrats that it's your right today to vote for Roosevelt if you want to, provided you intend to go through with him to the finish. I certainly do not think it is square, or even honest, for a Democrat to vote for Roosevelt, or for Taft, or for La Follette, today, and then go back to the Democratic nominee. I hate to say this, for it means the loss of votes for Roosevelt, but it is not square.

Second. You have nothing to lose, for, in all human probability, Bryan is to be the next Democratic nominee—if Roosevelt carries the Republican banner.

And yet the only Democrat you can vote for today is Wilson or Clark, and the nomination of either will have as much effect on your High Cost Living as the selection of this season's Newport, R. I., cotillon leader will have on the price of salt codfish in Faneuil Hall market.

One word more. Don't let any of those accordion-mouthed politicians pooh-pooh my Bryan statement.

The politician must talk along lines of his job or his boss's job. If he wins there are spoils; if he loses his boss pays the bills and gets it back from you, the people.

Of course, you see the difference between the advice of a man running for office and one who has never run and never would accept any office.

I only mention this that you may know the difference between the sort of advice I give you and the advice the politician gives you. I can be, and am, absolutely independent in all my advice. The politician cannot be. The only thing I have to ask myself is: Is it best for us poor devils who are carrying the load? Then I shoot ahead.

My position, after over a quarter century's constant battling for the under dog, regardless of who the upper one was, or the party he belonged to, or how he liked what I had to say to him, has given me an independent viewpoint which is all my own. For instance, after the "Frenzied Finance" Life Insurance campaign, I had, as permanent correspondents, almost five hundred thousand of the thinkers in every nook and corner of the country. Whenever any question like the present one arises, they just tell me what they think, and they really think what they tell. The result is that I have a fairly good idea whether the people want Roosevelt or not, which frequently is a decidedly different idea from that held by the politicians.

Now, I am not sure that Roosevelt will be selected today, for I am no politician, and there are lots of things about which I know nothing which enter into the final result.

But I do know this, and you can really depend upon it: My returns show me a most overwhelming sentiment for Roosevelt. I will turn in, from my advertising campaign, at least 40 thousand votes that otherwise would have gone for Taft or a Democrat. I may turn in 100 thousand, but from returns I can guarantee that at least 40 thousand votes, which would have been Taft or Democratic, will be in the Roosevelt column.

And my returns are entirely different from those of the newspaper straw votes or the guesses of the politicians.

They are the earnest, heart-deep pledges of men and women who are for the Cause for the sake of the Cause.

When Foss was first elected Governor, I advertised, and a careful tally of the responses before the election showed that I turned 36 thousand Republican votes to Foss. My verification of the number, after the election, showed over 40 thousand.

My advertising campaign for Roosevelt, I have reason to believe, is the most successful of the kind that I have ever directed.

The overwhelming number of returns, which I have already had, shows me it has taken a strong grip upon the people in all walks of life. In one shop of 25 machinists—a week ago every one for Taft or a Democrat—they have signed a memorial that might cost a number of them their jobs, and this memorial shows not only that because of my advertising they are for Roosevelt, but that they are with him at any cost.

It's the same in a hotel memorial of 62 signatures—40-odd of these originally strong for Taft.

I have had 8 school teachers in different parts of the State tell me that it looks like a sweep for Roosevelt; 4 college professors in different colleges in different parts of the State the same; 60 ministers and priests from all parts of the Commonwealth assure me, most of them in remarkably direct language, they have never seen anything like the awakening to the Great Question—High Cost Living. From 5 G. A. R. Posts I have 300-and-odd letters. The veterans say, almost to a man, that they have switched because they have been educated, through my advertising campaign, to the enormity of the crimes of the System—the brutal pillaging of the many by the few—which has culminated in High Cost Living.

Whatever the outcome of the election today, the returns from my advertising have shown me conclusively that the headline of my Roosevelt or Revolution series was soundly chosen; that either Roosevelt or some man of equally strong calibre (and I know of no other who can be voted for today) will be elected, with instructions from the Massachusetts voters to smash to smithereens present High Cost Living and the black devils entrenched behind it, or there will be revolution as raw and bloody red and brutally hideous as any the world has ever seen since its beginning.

ASK NEW RULES FOR AMATEURS

By JACK CONWAY.

Johnny Brassill, the [illegible] Cambridge boxing promoter and official, intends making a vigorous effort to have several changes made in the rules governing amateur boxing tournaments. Brassill is desirous of having all trial bouts limited to three-minute rounds with a half-minute intermission between each round. He is also advocating that the third round in final bouts be three instead of four minutes.

Besides changing the length of the rounds in trial bouts and the third round in final bouts Johnny would like to get a rule passed prohibiting amateur boxers wearing tape on their hands. He believes that a cloth bandage is sufficient protection for the hands of any "simon pure" mitt artist.

Brassill's suggestions are the result of a careful study of the conditions existing among the amateur boxers of New England and they should be given careful consideration by every lover of clean, wholesome sport.

A rule limiting the rounds in the trial bouts to two minutes would be a very good one. It would enable the boxers to save their strength for the semi-finals and finals and it would also go a great way in getting the final bouts over before the wee hours of the morning.

Many amateur boxers have met defeat by being obliged to fight two three-minute and one four-minute round in the final bout. It is asking too much of a boy to have him box a four-minute round after he has engaged in three or four hard contests previous in the evening. He is usually a pretty tired youth when he enters the ring for the final bout and he has all he can do to fight three three-minute rounds.

It wouldn't be a bad idea to limit the amount of tape a boxer puts on his hands. Some of our youthful aspirants for ring honors enter the ring with their hands encased in a couple of pounds of tape. It is almost as bad as if they had a horseshoe in their glove.

Some of the gloves used at amateur tourneys are old and in many cases have been even soaked in water. And as a result, when a boy is hit with one of these tattered old gloves he is often severely injured and blood begins to flow freely. Amateur boxing tourneys in New England are conducted on a pretty high basis but there is still a great deal of room for improvement.

Moha Wants to Put K. O. on McKinnon

Bob Moha and Bill McKinnon will battle in a ten-round bout at New York tonight. Moha has given out the advance information that he will send the Roxbury middleweight to slumberland inside of the limit. He will have to show good form if he is to do this, for William is traveling at a merry clip just now and is capable of defeating a large number of the present crop of middleweights.

Moha has got a hunch that he is the coming middleweight champion. If he defeats McKinnon tonight, he will challenge the winner of the Klaus-Dillon fight which takes place at Madison Square Garden on Friday night.

Connolly Has Chance With McFarland

Johnny Connolly of Scotland has been matched to meet Packey McFarland in a twelve-round bout before the Colonial A. C. of Fall River on May 8. Eddie Mack's protege has already started training for the contest. He will have to be in the best of condition if he is to stay the limit with the wonderful Chicago battler.

B. C. High Team Has Hard Schedule

The schedule of the Boston College High School baseball team is the longest ever arranged at the school and the players are anxious to make a good showing in their first meeting with the new teams on the list. The games for the remainder of the season are as follows:

May 1—Commerce at Fenway.
May 4—Woburn High at Woburn.
May 8—Rindge Tech at Cambridge.
May 11—Pending.
May 14—Wellesley High at Wellesley.
May 16—St. Joseph's School at Manchester, N. H.
May 18—Beverly High at Beverly.
May 22—Dedham High at Dedham.
May 25—Powder Point School at Duxbury.
May 30—Wakefield High at Wakefield.
June 1—Weymouth High at Weymouth.
June 3—Brookline High at Brookline.
June 5—Boston Latin at Massachusetts avenue.
June 7—West Roxbury High at Roslindale.
June 8—St. John's Prep. at Danvers.

Lafayette Announces Football Schedule

BUFFALO, April 30.—Ten games have been arranged for the Lafayette football team for next Fall. All ten games will be played on the home grounds. The season will open on September 28 with Dunkirk and close on November 23 with Chamberlain.

The new faces in the schedule will be Dunkirk, Tonawanda and St. John's. The freshman squads of Cornell and Syracuse besides Warsaw, will be those dropped. The schedule follows:

Sept. 28, Dunkirk at Lafayette Field; Oct. 5, Oswego at Lafayette Field; Oct. 12, North Tonawanda at Lafayette Field; Oct. 19, Central at Lafayette; Oct. 26, St. John's at Lafayette Field; Nov. 2, Niagara at Lafayette Field; Nov. 9, Tonawanda at Lafayette Field; Nov. 16, Technical at Lafayette Field; Nov. 23, Chamberlain at Lafayette Field; Nov. 28 (Thanksgiving Day), Masten Park at Lafayette Field.

Home Run Baker Puts One Over on Ty Cobb

"Home Run" Baker put one over on his rival for baseball honors, Ty Cobb, and Postmaster-General Hitchcock is being blamed by the friends of the "Georgia Peach" for it. Orders were issued at the Postoffice Department changing the name of the office at Cobb, Fla., to Baker. Whether Baker's remarkable showing in the world's series had anything to do with the change is not stated, but anyhow, the followers of Cobb are indignant at the action of the department. The score between the two men now stands 13 to 5 in favor of Baker. There are thirteen offices named Baker in various sections of the country, while Cobb has the honor of having but five named for him.

MIGHTY POLE WINS FAREWELL MATCH

Zbyszko, the Polish giant, defeated Jesse Westergard, the Iowa farmer, in straight falls at the Grand Opera House last night. It was a hard struggle for the Pole, who gained the first fall in thirty minutes and twenty-five seconds, on a forward crotch hold, and the final fall in seven minutes and fifty-five seconds.

MRS. BRITTON IN FIGHT FOR CLUB

ST. LOUIS, April 30.—The fight for the control of the St. Louis National League baseball team which is now being wagered between Mrs. Sarah Gerver Robinson, widow of the late Stanley Robison and mother of Mrs. Helen Britton, against E. A. Steininger, president of the St. Louis club; is attracting the attention of the entire baseball world.

Mrs. Robison a few days ago brought suit against Steininger, president of the club and executor of the estate of the late Stanley Robison, to restrain him from voting on her 248¾ shares of stock at meetings of the stockholders and to compel him to put the stock in her name on all the corporation books.

Mrs. Britton, the nominal head of the club, and the only woman in the National League, was among the witnesses called.

Mrs. Britton testified that the St. Louis National League team had made money for the owners during the season of 1911. She also testified that in her opinion the financial success of the Cardinals for the season of 1911 was not due to the good presidency of Steininger, but to the excellent playing of Roger Bresnahan and his proteges.

Advised to Hide Stock.

Mrs. Britton testified that Steininger delivered the shares to her and told her by no means to let anybody take them away or even see them.

This was when Henry Troll, public administrator, and F. N. Abercrombie were trying to become administrators of the Robison estate.

"You say Steininger and his attorney, A. N. Sager, instructed you that way," Priest rejoined. "What reason did they give?"

"I was told to do this because if Abercrombie should succeed in his first suit he would get only an empty shell."

In reply to a question as to why she hadn't demanded before that Steininger have the stocks changed to her name, she said she thought everything was all right.

She declared she became distrustful of Steininger when at a conference in Sager's office he asked her to turn over the stock certificates to him.

Wanted to Run the Club.

She said then that Steininger had failed to take her into his confidence about the conduct of the business and returned unsatisfactory answers to her questions. Priest asked her if it wasn't true that she had interfered and tried to run the business of the team.

"Well, why shouldn't I if I wanted to?" she retorted. "I am the owner of the club."

Boxing Results

NEW YORK, April 30.—Phil Cross, younger brother of the famous Leach, knocked out Ralph Rose in the third round of their scheduled ten-round bout last night at the Fordon A. C. The affair was one-sided from the start, Cross flooring his opponent six times before the final count.

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—Young Jack O'Brien added another victory to his credit last night, defeating Tommy Carey at the American A. C. O'Brien had every round with the exception of the fifth, which was even.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 30.—Phil Brock of Cleveland and Grover Hayes of Philadelphia fought a twelve-round battle before the Olympic A. C. last night, and the contest was one of the most interesting and spirited seen here this year. In nearly every round it was a give and take affair, and the battle would have been a draw if a decision were allowed.

ALBANY, April 30.—Tommy Houck of New York gave a fine beating to Benny Kaufman of Philadelphia before the Knickerbocker A. C. last night. Houck got away to a poor start, but from the sixth round on he had it all his own way and administered severe punishment to Kaufman. Kaufman got the first three rounds, the fourth was even and the rest were in favor of Houck.

NEW YORK, April 30.—In a fast ten-round bout last night at the Brooklyn Beach A. C., Mel Coogan of Flatbush experienced little trouble in outpointing "Buck" ("Twin") Miller of Philadelphia.

BALTIMORE, April 30.—"Happy" Davis, the Philadelphia featherweight, completely outclassed Johnny Daly of this city in a fast fifteen-round setto here last night. From the opening of the fray the Philadelphia boxer worried his opponent by his constant left jabbing, and the local fighter was in a battered condition at the finish. Al Schumacher of New York and Jimmy Dougherty boxed a fast fifteen-round draw.

NEW YORK, April 30.—James J. Coffey of Ireland did the "come-back act" at the Olympic Club in Harlem last night, knocking out Larry Williams in the second bout of their scheduled ten-round bout.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Marty Brown, the local featherweight, easily defeated Johnny Moran, the "fighting actor," in the main bout last night at the Irving A. C. in Brooklyn.

U. S. LEAGUE TO OPEN TOMORROW

The United States League of Professional ball players will make its debut before the American baseball public tomorrow in the following cities: Cleveland, Cincinnati, New York and Richmond. The other clubs in the league are Pittsburg, Chicago, Reading and Washington.

The headquarters of the new league are in Reading, Pa., and the officials are William Abbott Whitman, president, and William L. Murphy of Cleveland, vice-president. The board of directors is composed of the president, vice-president and Marshall Henderson of Pittsburg.

The league has secured grounds in the above eight cities and everything is in readiness for the opening games to-morrow. The Pittsburg team will be under the management of Deacon Phillippe, for many years the star pitcher of the Pittsburg National League team.

Jack O'Connor, former manager of the St. Louis Browns of the American League, has been secured to manage the Cleveland team, and he has the following well-known major league players on his payroll: Jerry Freeman, Joe Delehanty, Howard Wakefield and Pat Rafferty.

Al Newman, who managed the Newark team of the Ohio State League last season, will pilot the Richmond team of the new league, and he will have the assistance of "Sox" Seybold, for many years one of the crack outfielders of the Philadelphia Americans.

SEVEN BOSTON MEN IN NEW YORK RACE

Six sturdy distance runners will represent the North Dorchester A. A. in the New York Mail cross-country run. The list includes Festus Madden, who finished third in the classic B. A. A. Marathon; I. Saklad, winner of the Municipal A. A. ten-mile run; A. E. Garber, winner of fourth place and the time prize in the Acme A. A. ten-mile run; Al Upham, winner of fifth prize in the Acme A. A. run; William Fallon, who finished eighteenth in the B. A. A. Marathon and second in the Pilgrim A. A. ten-mile run and William Gover. Joe Silva of the B. A. A. will also be a starter.

PILGRIMS MAY GET GANDIL

MONTREAL, April 30.—"Chick" Gandil, the hard-hitting first sacker of the Montreal team of the International League, will be sold to the Boston National League team within the next few days. The Boston team has been after Gandil since the opening of the season, and have sent two pitchers to Montreal in exchange for him, but President Lichtenhein refused to let Gandil go until the close of the season.

Gandil, however, is in bad with Manager Lush and a few days ago engaged in a fist fight with his manager on the grounds of the Providence team. Gandil was suspended and fined $10 for his rowdy conduct and he at once left for Montreal, stating that he would never again play with that team.

President Lichtenhein, when seen in regard to the incident, said: "I am afraid I will have to let Chick Gandil go." When asked if he was going to the Boston National League team, Lichtenhein refused to answer.

Amateur Games

A good right-handed pitcher would like to work in Saturday afternoon games for some fast semi-professional or amateur team in or near Boston. Address, G. E. H., No. 180A Portland street, city.

The South Boston A. A. is without games for May 4, 11 and 18 at home. Would like to hear from Stoughton, Plymouth Cordage, Newton C. C. C. and Winchester. Also have open dates away from home in June and July. Will play for a reasonable guarantee. Manager S. Fleming, No. 141 D Street, South Boston.

The Mansfield A. C. challenges any fast eighteen-nineteen-year-old uniformed teams in the State. Open dates away from home in May, June and July. Manager J. E. Bell, No. 575 North Main street, Mansfield.

The Floyds of Dorchester would like to arrange games with any fast sixteen-year-old uniformed team after May 18. Manager C. C. Sullivan, No. 29 Stratton st., Dorchester.

The Monitor A. C. of South Medford would like to arrange games with any sixteen-year-old team for May 30, June 17 and Saturdays in June, July and August. Manager Robert Harris, No. 3 William place, South Medford.

The Eagles of Chelsea would like to hear from strong semi-professional teams paying fair guarantees. Manager M. White, No. 32 Library st., Chelsea.

The Fenway Grays of Jamaica Plain, would like to arrange games with any 16-17-year-old teams in the State. The team is made up of fast Dorchester and Roxbury stars. Manager J. F. Young, No. 16 Gay Head street, Roxbury.

The Coronas of Brockton will put a strong nine on the diamond this season and would like to meet the fastest teams in New England. Have open dates for all Saturdays and holidays throughout the season. Manager Edward Anderson, No. 12 Barry street, Brockton.

The Back Bay A. A. desires games with fast amateur teams in Eastern Massachusetts. Manager William Damon, No. 80 West Rutland street, city.

The Pickering Alumni of Salem is without a game for the afternoon of May 30 and morning of June 17. Any fast team in the State may be accommodated for these dates by writing to Manager Albert Pierce, No. 125 North street, Salem.

The Mt. Pleasant A. A. is without games for May 11 and 18. Will play at home or abroad. Will give and take favorable inducements. Manager Joseph Crehan, No. 11 Foye avenue, Weymouth.

The Young Men's Catholic Institute of Lowell has organized a fast nine for the coming season and is anxious to meet teams offering a reasonable guarantee. The team has been strengthened by the acquisition of two men and is out for the State title. Manager William Harrington, Young Men's Catholic Institute, Lowell.

The Auburn A. C. of Roslindale would like to hear from the fastest 14-15-year-old teams in or around Boston. The lineup is: Friary, catcher; Potts, pitcher; McKay, first base; Toleson, second base; Dwyer, third base; Fowler, shortstop; Nagle, right field; Businger, centre field; and McMillian, left field. Manager R. Fowler, Bellevue avenue, Roslindale.

The Farley A. C. of Brookline is still waiting to hear from fast 18-19-year-old teams. Manager F. T. Waul, No. 12 Perry street, Brookline.

The Beacon A. A. of Boston would like to hear from the fastest semi-professional teams in New England. Games are desired with Plymouth Cordage, Hyannis, Dennison Mfg. Co., Lowney, Mansfield, Middleboro, Danvers, Lancaster, and other teams paying a guarantee. Managers desiring games should communicate with the club headquarters, No. 840 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.

The Lincolns of Waltham are open to meet the fastest amateur and semi-professional teams in the State. The Tilton A. C. of Winthrop and the Lincoln A. C. of Lowell, preferred. Manager Joseph Smith, No. 107 Felton street, Waltham.

New Track Team at Brookline High

Brookline High has a track team that is made up of all new material this year and just what it will be able to do is as yet a problem. The schedule includes the Amherst meet on the 11th of May, the Harvard Interscholastic on the 25th and the Brown games on the 30th. The season closes with an inter-class meet during the first week in June. K. Dean, a most promising half-miler; Charles Wyman for the shot-put and discus; Julian Spitz, their miler, and Captain Philip Nordell, out for the 100-yard dash and 120 low hurdles, are the only men that Brookline will send to the Amherst meet, as the other good men that are out for the team are all below in their studies. The rule at Brookline is that a man must be up in every study to be eligible. By the time the other meets are held it is expected that some of the other promising athletes will again be able to take part.

Cherokees Sign Good Players for Its Team

Manager Paul Halloran is working hard these days getting together a speedy bunch of youngsters for the Cherokee baseball team. Many of the players that made a good showing in semi-professional circles last year have been signed, and a couple of players who are expected to bolster the team in great shape will also be seen this year.

The team has still several open dates and would like to book games with the strongest semi-professional teams away from home for a reasonable guarantee. Would like to book double-header for May 30 in any part of the State. Paul Halloran, No. 108 P street, South Boston.

SANDY LOOKS FOR WIN.

Sandy Ferguson is training hard for his ten-round bout with Sailor White, which is scheduled to take place before the Central A. C. Friday night. The Chelsea strong boy is confident that he will stop White inside of seven rounds.

Sandy is now in good condition and is capable of holding his own with the majority of the members of the "white hope" brigade. The big fellow is boxing fast and possesses a corking good left hand punch.

ELEVEN SCHOOL BATTLES TODAY

SCHOOL GAMES TODAY

Volkmann vs. Milton High at Allston.
Newton High vs. Melrose High at Newtonville.
Quincy High vs. Cambridge High and Latin at Quincy.
Waltham High vs. Lawrence Academy at Groton.
B. Y. M. C. A. Day Prep vs. H. S. of Commerce at Fenway.
Hingham High vs. Braintree High at Hingham.
Woburn High vs. Harvard Independents at Woburn.
Wellesley High vs. Hyde Park High at Wellesley.
Wayland High vs. Natick at Wayland.
Brockton High vs. Rockland High at Brockton.
Randolph High vs. Oliver Ames High at Randolph.

Eleven schoolboy games were played today. The feature games of the day were between Melrose and Newton, which was played at Newtonville, and Volkmann and Milton High at Milton.

Ross, the fifteen-year-old phenom, who promises to develop into one of the best schoolboy pitchers of recent years, was selected to do the box work for the leaders of the Suburban league, while Merrill was on the receiving end.

Allie Dickinson chose Higginson to stop the winning streak of the heavy hitting Melrose team with Conroy doing the catching. Newton was confident that they could down the Melrose team.

* * *

The new Interurban Baseball League which has been formed for the schools in the immediate vicinity of Boston, too small to furnish fast enough material for the Suburban League, will open its season at Winthrop on May 2. At present this league is to cover only baseball teams, but there is every prospect that very shortly it will have authority over all athletic events. High schools represented by teams in the league at present are Winthrop, Chelsea, Saugus and Revere.

* * *

The formation of the league started too late for it to include more teams this year. There is every probability that there will be many schools that will apply for admission next year.

* * *

The school that wins the championship of the league will receive a large pennant. The present officers of the league are: President, E. B. Osborne, principal of the Winthrop High School; J. F. Butterworth, principal of Saugus, is vice-president, and S. W. Fenno, sub-master of Revere, is the secretary and treasurer. There is a board of management, in which all of the schools making up the league are represented.

* * *

Saugus has a team that is rapidly settling into good form. On the Revere team there are two individual players who are showing the making of very good players. Drumming is fast at short, and very good at the bat. Nash, the left-fielder, is also a good one. Neither Chelsea nor Winthrop have lost a game since the beginning of this season. The chances are that the league will see some very fast work before the season is over.

RILEY'S COLUMN

Charley Hall is in turn to pitch against the Athletics today. Hall has been more successful than all the other Sox flingers, and has won all of his games on his merits. Eddie Cicotte will not do yet, and Larry Pape's arm is not yet in shape. Jack Bushelman, the young giant, was on exhibition for an inning yesterday and looked better than he was last year. Stahl has some confidence in Bushelman's future. He hopes, too, that Bedient's good showing of last Friday was not a flash in the pan, and that the youngster will soon be able to take his regular turn. "Buck" O'Brien traveled in championship form for five innings yesterday, but "blew up" in the sixth. The wet ball may partially account for this, but O'Brien has not yet reached top-notch form.

* * *

The weather helped the Pilgrims to remain in third place. They are hard pressed for pitchers just now. With Perdue up today, they have a good chance to break even in the Giants series. Later in the season they will go after those two postponed games with more chance of success than they would have now. Kling's team is one of the two surprises of the National League thus far, Hank O'Day's Cincinnati Reds being the other.

* * *

Both Barry and Wagner were bothered by the wet weather in short field yesterday. Each of them made two "boots." Wagner threw McInnes' grounder low in the seventh inning and "Stuffy" scored later. He juggled Thomas' easy grounder in the ninth and the Athletics' catcher also tallied. Baker threw Speaker's attempted sacrifice through Barry's hands in the fifth, and the Philadelphia shortstop fumbled and then threw Nunamaker's grounder low in the fourth, Lewis scoring. The game was played in a constant drizzle.

Jimmy Callahan's White Sox are the surprise of the American League, and the losing streaks of the Tigers and the Yankees are the unexpected weak spots in the league. When the East and West line up next week "fans" will soon discover how true to form these strong and weak exhibitions are.

* * *

It is a foregone conclusion that when Eddie Plank pitches for the Athletics, the Red Sox lose. You can usually bet, too, that "Big Ed" Walsh and Walter Johnson will trim the Sox. Barring those three, all pitchers seem to look very much alike to Jake Stahl's clouters. That trio is formidable enough to everybody, so the Sox needn't apologize.

* * *

The Pilgrims come home for a four games' series with Brooklyn tomorrow, and the Red Sox go South on a four days' campaign in Washington. Here's hoping the Sox will carry a grouch to the capital. They presented the Senators with two of their games here, sufficient generosity to last for the rest of the season.

Brown Track Men Train for M. I. T.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 30.—In spite of the poor weather conditions, the Brown track squad, in good condition after its easy win of the Triangular meet at Hartford Saturday, was put through a stiff practice today by Coach O'Connor in preparation for the meet with M. I. T. at Boston next Saturday. The Brown team looks upon this contest as the most important of its schedule, and is bending every effort to turning out a team which shall show the Hub athletes a few things. The sting of last year's overwhelming defeat is still fresh in the minds of the Providence lads, and they want to wipe it out when the chance offers.

Coach O'Connor plans to take along about thirty men, though all of them will probably not be used. The list will probably be named after this afternoon's practice.

WIN SHOOTING TITLE

CHICAGO, April 30.—J. R. Graham and R. W. Clancy, world's championship team shooting at double targets from sixteen yards, successfully defended their title yesterday against W. A. Davis and A. F. MacLachlan. The special match was at fifty paces. The winners totaled 161, while their opponents were able to break only 134 targets.

Columbia Crews Two Weeks Behind Time

NEW YORK, April 30.—The Columbia crews had another day of enforced idleness because of the rough water on the West shore of the Hudson kicked up by a stiff northeasterly wind.

With the race against Annapolis less than two weeks away Coach Jim Rice says the varsity eight is fully a fortnight behind in its development. He is doubtful if it will be in more than fair condition for the race with the Middies.

The injury of F. Miller, No. 5 in the varsity shell, received two weeks ago, is proving more serious than was at first supposed, and it is doubtful if he will be able to get back much before the triangular race with Princeton and Pennsylvania.

The proposed triangular race between the Yale, Princeton and Columbia freshman crews on May 18 has not yet been definitely arranged, but Rice is preparing for it already.

DARTMOUTH TRACK TEAM IS PICKED

HANOVER, N. H., April 30.—Coach Harry Hillman of the Dartmouth track team picked twenty men to go to the training table last night. The men picked are: Sprints—Olson, Hands, O'Connor, Wilkins; 440 yards—Gardner, Steinert, Dolan; half-mile—Haywood; mile—Marceau, Ball, Harmon, Day; hurdles—Seidler, Llewellyn, Riley, Gillis; pole vault—Wright, Buck; jumps—Enright, Mason; weights—Tilley, Marden, Englehorn.

Stars of Montreal After Boston's Best Amateur Ball Teams

Here is a chance for fast amateur semi-professional teams of Boston. The following letter has been received by the Amateur Baseball Editor of the AMERICAN, from Cecil M. Hart, manager of the Star baseball team of Montreal, Can., who is anxious to bring his team here on a visit.

It is the intention of Manager Hart while here to stick his champions against the fastest independent teams of Boston. The Star club is the oldest and strongest team in Montreal, having won the championship of that city last season after making a splendid record. Here is the letter sent by Mr. Hart:

> The Star Baseball Club of Montreal, Can., independent champions of that city, would like to arrange a series of games with some of the clubs in or around Boston. The Stars are the oldest and strongest independent team of Montreal, and have splendid records. For full information address Cecil M. Hart, secretary-treasurer, No. 296 Sherbrooke street West, Montreal, Can.

One Hundred Rookies Have Been Sent Back

Among the new players who may remain in the big leagues this year are: Tesreau and Groh of the Giants; Moran, Daly, Downs and Allen of the Brooklyns; Brady of the Boston Nationals; Cravath and Seaton of the Philadelphia Nationals; Pratt and Elmer Brown of the St. Louis Browns; Hohnhorst of the Clevelands; Vitt and Louden, of the Detroits; Rath, Mattick, Peters, Weaver and Fournier, of the Chicago White Sox; Egan, Maggert, Houck and C. Brown, of the Athletics; Shanks and Moeller of the Washingtons; Phelan, of the Cincinnati Reds, and Lennox of the Chicago Cubs. These are all that are left of more than 100 recruits drafted or purchased by the major leagues last year.

Browns' New Pitcher Is But 20 Years Old

Who is Baumgardner? The Browns' young right-hander who created a reputation for himself by beating the mighty Ed Walsh in a pitching duel and engaged in a fifteen-inning 0—0 tie with Jim Scott, is a native of West Virginia. He lives in a small town near Huntington, the team for which he pitched in the Mountain States League last season.

Prior to joining the Browns in Montgomery in March, Baumgardner had never been out of his native state. In that league, however, he won twenty-four games and lost nine. He weighs 175 pounds and is only twenty years old. He will reach his majority in July.

Job of Umpiring Too Strenuous for Knockout Brown

NEW YORK, April 30.—"Knockout" Brown had an experience umpiring that nearly cost him his life. He was the man behind the bat at Olympic Field, where two colored teams played. The first man up whanged out a corking single and hot-footed it for first.

"You're out!" shouted Brown.

That settled it. The entire team made a rush for Brown, and he took the fence.

"What's the matter with you?" demanded Dan Morgan, after Brown was out of harm's way.

"I couldn't think of safe, and I hollered out the first word that came to my mind."

JOHNSON STARTS WORK FOR BOUT

CHICAGO, Ill., April 30.—Jack Johnson has returned from Pittsburg and will immediately begin training for his coming bout with Jim Flynn, which will take place at Las Vegas, N. M., on July 4.

The champion still suffers from the injuries he received in his recent automobile accident, but does not figure that they will interfere with his preliminary work.

The doctors who attended Johnson told him that he would be perfectly sound within two weeks. Johnson looks upon his coming battle as just a little excitement and a chance to pick up some soft money.

JACK TWIN DEFEATS WHITE HOPE WUEST

CINCINNATI, O., April 30.—Before a packed house here last night Jack ("Twin") Sullivan of Boston outclassed Harry Wuest, the local white hope, in ten rounds of burlesque fighting. It was Sullivan all the way. The Easterner could not knock Wuest out, but he showed so much superiority after the third round that it was apparent which of the pair was the better.

Wuest started out in great fashion, but soon lost steam. He had Sullivan bewildered in the first two or three rounds. After Jack found his bearings, however, he toyed with Wuest at times.

There were two preliminaries and both resulted in knockouts. Young Jack Johnson put away Young Monroe, and Danny McGill slipped over a haymaker on Frank Beck, a local amateur.

ONLY MILITIA CAN STOP MORRIS BOUT

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 30.—Despite Governor Hadley's order that the local officials must not allow the scheduled boxing contest between Carl Morris and Luther McCarty to take place here next Friday night, J. P. Mason, county prosecutor, said today he would not interfere in the bout if it was held in compliance with the State laws.

Mason, who is a member of the club under whose auspices the fight is to be given, said the governor would have to call out the militia to stop the contest.

The sheriff said he would not act without orders from the prosecutor.

BALDWIN LOSES HIS BOUT WITH HYLAND

SALT LAKE CITY, April 30.—"Fighting" Dick Hyland was given the decision over Matty Baldwin at the end of a ten-round bout at Saltair Beach Pavilion last night.

MAY SHORTEN BALL SEASON

NEW YORK, April 30.—The poor physical condition of many ball players in the major league caused by the cold and damp weather has resulted in an agitation to curtail the playing season.

Though this season is but two weeks old, the weather conditions have caused several club owners to declare that there should be a radical reform in the making of schedules.

Not only have the players felt ill effects from the weather, but gate receipts have suffered. Records from the clubs in the big leagues show that attendance figures fall below the mark of other years.

The playing form of the big league clubs is also below the standard except in one or two cases. The Philadelphia National League club and the New York American League club are playing with teams made up almost entirely of substitutes.

The latest player in New York to fall a victim to weather conditions is Hal Chase, the first baseman of the New York Americans, who is suffering from a severe cold and a nervous breakdown.

He is under the care of a physician here. Others of the New York American League club on the hospital list are Cree, Wolter, Hartsell and Street.

The Philadelphia National League club has so many substitutes playing that its friends scarcely recognize it when it takes the field.

BIG POWER BOATS IN "LEMON RACE"

NEW YORK, April 30.—Two power boat races from New York to Albany this Summer are announced by the New York Motor Boat Club today. On May 30 there will be a relay race of speed boats from New York to Albany under supervision of the Hudson River Yachting Association, and on June 29 there will be the annual race from New York to the capital city and return, a distance of 285 nautical miles.

A "lemon race" on May 20 will be the novelty for the New York opening of the power-boat season.

ASKINS TO BOX AT NEW ORLEANS

Charles Askins, national 145-pound champion, will make the trip to New Orleans in order to compete in the big amateur athletic tourney planned for May 28 by Director Frank Gormerly of the Young Men's Gymnastic Club of New Orleans. Gormerly is a former Cambridge boy and recently visited this city in charge of the delegation of Southern boxers who competed in the national amateur boxing championships.

Askins is a very classy performer and should make a big hit with the lovers of the mitt game in the Southern city. Askins will meet Dave Johnstone, the 145-pound champion of the South. Johnstone was unable to compete in the recent national championships on account of illness. He is a good boy and should give the title holder a spirited battle.

Jimmy Lynch of Cambridge, national 105-pound champion, will also make the trip to New Orleans. Lynch is one of the classiest amateur boxers of his weight that has ever been developed in New England and he should win his bout in the South. His opponent will likely be Al Simons. Simons is a rattling good boy, but not quite as classy as the Cambridge youngster.

GETTYSBURG FOOTBALL DATES ANNOUNCED

GETTYSBURG, Pa., April 30.—The dates for the Gettysburg football team of 1912 have been announced by Manager Steck. Lafayette and Johns Hopkins have been dropped from the list and their places will be taken by Ursinus and Mt. St. Mary's. Bucknell, after an absence of one year, is also on the schedule. Following is the schedule: September 28, University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; October 5, Lebanon Valley at Gettysburg; October 12, Ursinus at Collegeville; October 19, Mt. St. Mary's at Emmittsburg; October 26, State College at State; November 2, Muhlenberg at Allentown; November 9, Delaware at Gettysburg; November 16, Dickinson at Gettysburg; November 23, Bucknell at Harrisburg.

NO. 34—WARREN LEAVES SOME PAPERS IN THE SUIT HE SENDS TO BE PRESSED

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

THEY had gotten up late that morning, and everything seemed to go wrong. Warren was more irritable than he had been since his return from the West.

In raising a blind it had slipped from his hand and flew up around the roller. And when he tried to jerk it down, the roller came too bringing with it a lot of dust. Fortunately Helen was in another room and did not hear his emphatic comments.

Then it did not add to his amiability to have a shoe string break as he hurriedly laced up his shoes. And when he started to put on a collar and found it rough and frayed on the edge—with a rasping oath he tore it across and threw it on the floor.

"How many times have I told you not to put any frayed collars in this drawer?" he demanded as Helen came in.

"Oh, did you find a frayed one? I thought I went over them all before they were put away."

"Well, the time to go over them is before you send them to the laundry. What's the use to pay two and one-half cents to have a collar laundered and then tear it up? Now here," hurriedly going through the pockets of a suit and throwing it on a chair, "this is to be pressed. I'll stop by the tailors on my way to the car. And that light gray overcoat needs pressing—you'd better give him that."

Helen Depressed

When he hurried away after a hasty breakfast, Helen was conscious things had gone worse than on any morning since his reurn. She felt guiltily at fault about the collar, she knew nothing irritated him more than to get one that was frayed.

Always Helen had striven to have his clothes in order. Even though she had to neglect her own and Winifred's, she never put his laundry away without first seeing that there were no torn buttonsholes and no buttons off. At least that cause for irritation she could prevent.

It was just 12 o'clock when the phone rang. It was Warren—and his voice was plainly hurried and anxious.

"Has the man come for that suit yet?"

"Why, yes, dear," wonderingly.

"How long ago?"

"Why, about — Oh, soon after you left."

"Might have known it—just my luck. Left a bill book with some papers and about twenty dollars in that coat."

"Oh!" Helen gasped her dismay.

"Now you get on your things and go down there as quick as you can. Say you made a mistake—that you sent the wrong suit. Get it back before he presses it—if he's not already done it. And call me up as soon as you get back."

It took Helen only a few moments to put on her hat and slip on a long coat over her house gown. She almost ran the two blocks to the dingy little tailoring shop. On an "A" shaped board before the door was the usual sign of:

| | |
|---|---|
| Suits sponged and pressed...... | .50 |
| Pants .. .. ...................... | .15 |
| Ladies' suits ........... ........ | .75 |

Inside was an unpleasant odor of damp cloth. The tailor, a small, swarthy foreigner, was pressing a pair of pants from which a faint steam arose as he dampened them with a sponge.

"Oh, I—I made a mistake. I gave you the wrong suit this morning. You—you haven't pressed it yet?"

"There 'tis, m'am," nodding to row of suits that hung behind him. "All done. Want to take it now?"

As he took it down Helen stepped forward and felt the coat—but there was nothing in it.

The Billbook Gone

"Why—Mr. Curtis said he left something in his pocket. Did you find it?"

The man shook his head. "Nothin' in pockets."

"Oh, but Mr. Curtis was quite sure that he left a billbook."

"Nothin' in pockets," stolidly, as he clumsily wrapped the suit in a newspaper.

Not knowing what else to do, Helen took the awkward bundle and hurried home. There she searched every pocket, but they were empty except for a subway ticket and a tobacco stamp.

Then she called up Warren.

"Thought so," when she told him. "I'll see him on the way home. He'll find he can't get away with this as easy as he thinks."

"But, Warren, he didn't look guilty or self-conscious. He seemed very natural."

"Oh, he's shrewd enough to hoodwink you. You didn't think he'd give himself away, did you?"

"But, dear, are you SURE you left it in that coat? Have you looked everywhere else?"

"Of course I'm sure. Because you're always forgetting where you put things—don't think I am. I'll settle with that man tonight."

It was almost six when he came home. In a glance Helen saw that he had not recovered the billbook.

"Did you go to the tailor's " she asked cautiously.

"Yes," curtly.

She knew Warren always hated to be questioned, that he always wanted to wait and tell things at his own time. But now she could not refrain from asking:

"What did he say, dear "

Warren's Threat

"What did he say?" irritably. "Said there was nothing in the pockets, of course. But he looked guilty as the devil. He'll find he can't put across any monkey business with me. I told him if he didn't hand over the billbook by 9 o'clock tomorrow morning I'd have an officer there. And by George, I will!"

"But, dear," hesitatingly. "I don't think he looked guilty."

"Huh, what do you know about it? He could fool you without half trying. He put up a pretty good bluff with me, but I could see through him all right. I can always tell when a man's guilty. Never been wrong on that yet. And this man—huh, it's a cinch! I had him sized up before I'd been in that shop two minutes. He'll hand over that billbook in the morning—don't you lose any sleep about that."

Late that evening as Helen folded up the counterpane and turned down the bed clothes for the night, she happened to move back the chair on which Warren had thrown his suit that morning. And there on the floor was the billbook!

"Oh, Warren, Warren," joyously, as she ran eagerly into the front room. "Look, dear, here it is!"

He turned sharply. But there was no answering joy in his face.

"Where did you find it?" he demanded.

"Under the chair on which you laid the suit this morning."

"Suppose it never occurred to you to look there before?" sarcastically.

"Why, Warren, you said you were sure"—— And then, as she saw the gathering scowl on his face, she stopped.

She had lived with Warren long enough to know that one of the things that made him most furious was to be proven in the wrong. And she realized now, as she stood there with the billbook in her hand, that he would rather have lost it than to have her find it in this way.

In a flash she thought of all the things he had said, of his assurance of its being in his pocket, and of his positive repeated assertions that the tailor had looked guilty. But for the sake of peace she must make him feel that she was not thinking of these things. Even the secret realization of his own cocksureness when he had been wrong always irritated him.

And this was not the only time Helen had found it expedient to smooth things over in this way. Over and over again there had come up incidents in which she had to pretend that he had not been wrong, even when the facts were as absurdly clear as they were now.

Most men, when they have been so positive, hate to admit that they were wrong—but Warren never admitted it. And it always threw him into a rage if any one tried to prove him wrong or even let him know that they thought he was—whatever the facts might be.

And now Helen with quick tact said laughingly:

"Well, dear, you are right; the billbook WAS in your coat pocket—and it must have fallen out when I went to give it to the tailor."

His positive assertions of the tailor's guilt she could only ignore, but she went on lightly as though she had entirely forgotten it.

"It was so stupid of me not to see that to-day. And Delia swept in here too—that proves she never moves things. You know, dear in some ways Delia is getting very careless. If she doesn't do better I shall have to speak to her. She really MUST dust more carefully than she has in the last few weeks."

And so Helen tactfully averted the threatened storm.

The Right Road to Health

—The Ideal Figure and How to Attain It—

By Annette Kellermann

Exercise No. 1—For strengthening all the muscles and reducing the hips. This exercise must be pursued with considerable vigor to gain the desired effect.

Exercise No. 2 (top picture)—For reducing the waist line.

Exercise No. 3—For strengthening the arms and shoulders.

MISS ANNETTE KELLERMANN

(Other poses in silhouette by Isabelle Jason, of the Winter Garden.)

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN

WHAT do you want to look like?

Have you an exact picture in your mind of your physical ideal of yourself?

Don't you want to look thin one day and rather plump the next, and have drooping shoulders in your evening gowns and square ones for tailor suits?

Most women don't quite know how they want to look; they have never had an exact ideal to follow.

That holds good of everything else, too.

You have got to have an exact picture or image in your mind to hold to, and all your development must be focussed in that direction—in the direction of your ideal.

My ideal is that of perfect health and usefulness.

Physically, it is nearly the ideal of the Greeks, modified slightly by the centuries of civilization, which demands brains as well as beauty in a woman.

I have always known how I wanted to look, and I work steadily to retain the right physical measurements which I gained by systematic work.

As to the Face

As to my face—well, gentle reader, Nature made that, and she alone is responsible for it. All I do is to see that no lines denoting ill temper, peevishness, arrogance and other unpleasant qualities creep into it.

I am mostly concerned with body-building and health-giving exercises, of which several are illustrated today.

These particular exercises are for strengthening the muscles of the abdomen and waist. They are especially good to quicken the sluggish organs of the body, liver and intestines, which in the average woman are seldom strong and active.

EXERCISE NO. 1

The first exercise shown in the picture is for strengthening these muscles and organs, as well as for exercising the thighs. The subject is shown kneeling, with arms extended, head stretched back. First, go through the following arm exercises, doing them with all the vigor you can put into them:

Swing the arms back until the hands meet behind you; now swing them forward again quickly. Leave them extended at the sides and bend the body forward, keeping the feet firmly on the ground. Recover your position again, place the hands on the hips and bend the body first to one side, then to the other. Bend down just as far as you can until you feel the strain in the muscles of the thighs.

EXERCISE NO. 2

In the same kneeling position place the hands on the hips and begin to twist the body. Use a great deal of force in doing the exercise and try and make the muscles of the waist respond. Usually these muscles are quite flabby, because women insist on wearing corsets which hold them up and take away the natural vigor and strength of the organs and muscles.

Many people have the mistaken idea that you make your waist larger by going without corsets. Naturally, if you have been squeezing yourself, you will fall in at the waist line and all the loose flesh and flabby muscles will bulge there. But with systematic exercise you can soon strengthen yourself so that your chest will be held up by the natural support of the muscles and the waist will appear smaller and more flexible than before.

Ten minutes' exercise daily won't counteract years of tight lacing. You will have to think about it as often as you can, holding yourself correctly, and getting away from long, tight corsets gradually by getting shorter ones, then simply girdles or waists as you get your figure into real shape again.

No one needs to be fat. Give up one meal a day and cut meat out of your bill of fare and you will grow thin rapidly and healthily. Try it and see.

EXERCISE NO. 3

I nearly forgot to put down the last exercise, which is rather difficult. You see that it consists of bending far back until the head touches the floor.

Begin slowly, bending only as far as you can comfortably. Increase the distance every day until you finally arrive at doing it entirely. When recovering—that is, bringing the body back to a straight position above the knees—be very careful not to strain yourself and "go easy," as the children say.

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

A man dining at a cafe observed that, though he had ordered one dozen oysters, he was given only eleven. The next evening the same thing occurred again. Then the diner became somewhat irritated. "Why," he demanded of the waiter, "do you serve me only eleven oysters when I ordered a dozen?"

The waiter bowed apologetically. "I didn't think you'd want to be sitting thirteen at table, sir."

* * *

"I'm a self-made man," said the proud individual.

"Well, you are all right, except as to your head," commented the other part of the conversation.

"How's that?"

"The part you talk with is out of proportion to the part you think with."

* * *

Tim—Sarer Smith (you know 'er—Bill's missus), she throwed herself horf the end uv the wharf larst night.

Tom—Poor Sarer!

Tim—An' a man fished 'er hout again.

Tom—Poor Bill!

* * *

Wife—Well, there you are, George. And did you have a good time? Was the hotel you stopped at home-like?

Husband (dryly)—Very, darling. There wasn't a thing in it fit to eat.

* * *

"Yes," the Rev. Dr. Gassaway was saying, "in all my pulpit utterances I endeavor to choose the very plainest subjects. There are sermons in stones, you know, and ——"

"That's so," interrupted the long-suffering parishioner; "but it's also worthy of note that the most precious stones are small, and they have to be cut before their beauty is apparent."

* * *

"Hallon, Bill! How precious white you look this morning!" exclaimed a facetious cabby, addressing a brother whip who had suddenly achieved notoriety by signing the pledge. "Whatever made you go and turn yourself into a water-butt?"

"'Cos I knowed I should be better able to hold the rein!" was the curt but conclusive reply.

* * *

Mrs. Parker can read her husband like a book."

"Yes; and shut him up like one, too."

Swift & Company's sales of Fresh Beef in Boston for the week ending Saturday, April 27th, averaged 11.91 cents per pound. **

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

INSTRUCTING DAYSEY MAYME

By FRANCIS L. GARSIDE

IT was unfortunately during one of the oft-recurring attacks of love-sickness, to which Daysey Mayme Appleton has been subject since she was seven, that her Aunt Maria arrived to visit them.

Aunt Maria is old-fashioned. If she were not she would long ago have changed her name to Marie. She is so old-fashioned she thinks youth is a period set apart and ordained for the purpose of acquiring knowledge.

Aunt Maria is always welcome at the Appletons, where her old-fashioned notions class her as being "eccentric." Aunt Maria's wealth gives her this right. Were she poorer, she would be called an "old fogy."

It was with the old-fashioned notion that Daysey Mayme needed something in her head as well as on it, that she escorted her to art galleries, lectures, museums, readings and concerts.

She jumped like a mental acrobat from proofs of the existence of a pre-man to the latest star discovered in the heavens, trying with a helping hand to get Daysey Mayme to jump with her, always gathering up information on the way.

They were standing in front of one of Millett's pictures.

"That," said Aunt Maria, "in my opinion is his best work, and it was painted in the cellar of an old barn in Barbison, a place not fit for an animal."

"Jean-Fancois Millett," repeated Daysey Mayme; "J.F.M.; how interesting! The same initials!"

Aunt Maria looked pleased that Daysey Mayme was interested. "The same initials as whose?" she asked, expecting to hear of some other great artist.

"The darlingest man!" bubbled Daysey Mayme. "He has the sweetest smile, and the cutest mustache. Let's go by the drugstore where he works, and have an ice cream soda. He's just too sweet for anything, and I want you to meet him."

"The masterpieces in art," continued Aunt Maria, ignoring the darlingest man, "were never recognized as such during the lives of those who painted them. They always have had to wait for recognition."

"Oh, you would recognize him, I am sure," prattled Daysey Mayme, who had caught only the last word. "He's the handsomest man I ever saw. All the girls are just dying of envy because he pays so much attention to me."

Aunt Maria sighed. "Look at this painting by Jacque!" she began.

"Jack's his first name," bubbled Daysey Mayme. "I wish he would spell it the French way. I'll have him up tonight, and suggest it. Why, Aunt Maria, you never in your life saw such beautiful finger nails as his! Oh, he is SO dear!"

They stood before a mummy, and Aunt Maria gave a brief little talk of the days when the mummy experienced the joys and sorrows known to those on earth today.

"I don't believe," interrupted her niece, "that she could have known much joy. I don't suppose her beau looked a bit like Jack."

A collection of precious stones reminded her of a ring Jack wore, containing the LARGEST set she ever saw. A collection of the rarest plant life, gathered from all over the world, suggested the Language of Flowers, and would Aunt Maria get her a little book on the subject. "You know," she explained, in the tones of one who felt that instruction was needed, "when a girl is in love she ought to know if mignonette means 'I love you,' or an orchid is a proposal, or a rose means 'Do you favor my attentions?'. Of course, Aunt Maria, you were never in love, and don't know how important such things are."

Aunt Marie gave a sniff of scorn, and tried to turn Daysey Mayme's mind to a recent discovery in astronomy.

"Oh, I love the stars," gurgled her niece, "Jack and I are going to make them a study every night he can get away from the store. You know a drug clerk has to work AWFUL hard, Aunt Maria."

Aunt Maria loosened her bonnet strings to relieve the choking sensation in her throat, and turned toward home. On the way there she learned that Jack's eyes are blue, that he gets $25 a week, and just adores pink, and can sing "Oh, You Beautiful Doll" just too sweet for anything, and has a pair of hose to match every tie.

"I find," wrote Aunt Maria in her diary that night, "that a woman of my age, and a girl of the age of Daysey Mayme do not speak the same language."

Quite a New Dish

THERE was recently presented to a newly married young woman in Baltimore such a unique domestic proposition that she felt called upon to seek expert advice from another woman whom she knew to possess considerable experience in the cooking line.

"Mrs. Dobbs," said the first-mentioned young woman, as she breathlessly entered the apartment of the latter, "I am sorry to trouble you, but I must have your advice."

"What is the trouble, my dear?"

"Why, I've just had a phone message from Harry, saying that he is going out this afternoon to shoot clay pigeons. Now, he's bound to bring a lot home, and I haven't the remotest idea how to cook them. Won't you please tell me?"

Was It Worth While?

JAM always did attract little Arthur and he persisted in helping himself, in spite of his mother's orders.

One day she caught him in the act, the jam-pot in one hand and a large spoon in the other.

"Arthur, you naughty boy!" she said sadly. "Why do you always disobey me and steal the jam?"

Arthur's sweet blue eyes turned heavenward and a little smile stole around his lips.

"I was just wondering, mother," he murmured, gently.

"Wondering? What do you mean, child?" asked his exasperated parent.

"Well, mother, I haven't tasted the jam yet," explained the lad, "and I was just wondering if it's nice enough to be whipped for!"

"H's" and "I's"

"Isn't that girl charming! But what a curious way she has of dropping her h's!"

"Yes, and such a bewitching way of letting her eyes fall, too."

The Manicure Lady

ISN'T it awful, George," said the Manicure Lady, "the way a lot of people talk over the phone?"

"I never keep on talking to them," said the Head Barber. "The minute anybody starts getting sassy with me I simply lay off. What's on your mind?"

"Oh, there was the freshest guy in the world called me up this morning, and he was trying to tell me something about a tip on a race. The way he talked I wasn't sure whether he wanted to talk to Jack Brown about Brown Jack in the second race, or Loose Lake in the tenth race. And the nerve of him, George! My goodness, he was that insulting that I was praying for him to get on to a street car and come down to the shop, where I could bounce one of your hair tonic bottles off his bean. Do you know what he said to me?"

"I wouldn't have any idea," said the Head Barber, guardedly.

"Well," said the Manicure Lady, "this is what he said, after I had tried three or four times to get the name that he was trying to tell me, he said that he would like to talk to somebody that had a little intelligence. Can you beat that, George? Get it? He wanted to talk to somebody that had a little intelligence!

"Honest to goodness, I just wish I knew who it was. The mean rat! He wanted to talk to somebody that had a little intelligence!"

"You don't need to repeat," said the Head Barber. "What did you say to him?"

"Oh, I didn't say much," replied the Manicure Lady. "I just said that I had intelligence enough, but that I wished I could talk to somebody that talked a little less like Kid Broad or Dummy Taylor. There is certain lengths, George, to which no man can go with me and get away with it. When I boil, I boil."

"You don't need to be glaring at me," said the Head Barber. "I never talked raw to you, over the phone or any other way."

"I know that, George," said the Manicure Lady. "You've always been a perfect dear to me. That is one of the things that I always admired about you. You never called me a peach, or said anything about that you would like to marry me and settle down in one of them vine clad Wisconsin cottages."

"I never said it because I wouldn't want to," said the Head Barber.

"You wouldn't want to what!" snapped the Manicure Lady.

"I mean I wouldn't want to get fresh with you," explained the Head Barber.

"Oh, I see," said the Manicure Lady. "You better not had, anyhow!"

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY
Tells How She Keeps Her Health — Happiness For Those Who Take Her Advice.
Scottville, Mich. — "I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.
"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has helped her.
"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to your wonderful medicine." —Mrs. J. G. JOHNSON, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 3.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for woman's ills known.

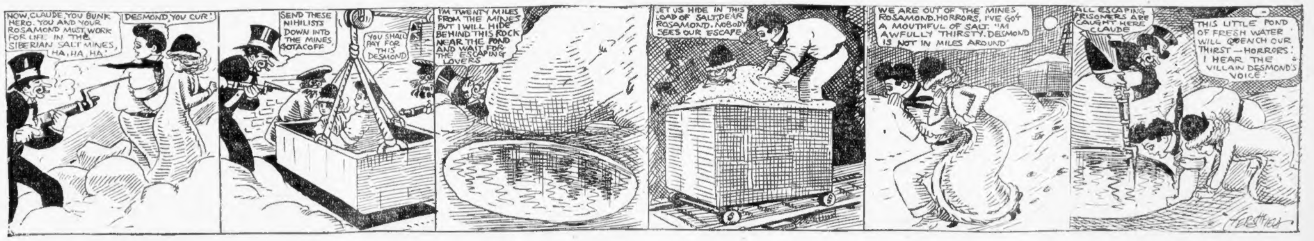
Claude and Rosamond Escape from the Salt Mine, but Are Halted by the Villain

Copyright, 1912, by the National News Association

By Hershfield



NOW, CLAUDE, YOU BUNK HERO. YOU AND YOUR ROSAMOND MUST WORK FOR LIFE IN THE SIBERIAN SALT MINES, HA, HA, HA!
DESMOND, YOU CUR!
SEND THESE NIHILISTS DOWN INTO THE MINES, GOTACOFF
YOU SHALL PAY FOR THIS DESMOND
I'M TWENTY MILES FROM THE MINES BUT I WILL HIDE BEHIND THIS ROCK NEAR THE POND AND WAIT FOR THE ESCAPING LOVERS
LET US HIDE IN THIS LOAD OF SALT, DEAR ROSAMOND. NOBODY SEES OUR ESCAPE
WE ARE OUT OF THE MINES ROSAMOND. HORRORS, I'VE GOT A MOUTHFUL OF SALT. "I'M AWFULLY THIRSTY. DESMOND IS NOT IN MILES AROUND"
ALL ESCAPING PRISONERS ARE CAUGHT HERE CLAUDE
THIS LITTLE POND OF FRESH WATER WILL QUENCH OUR THIRST — HORRORS! I HEAR THE VILLAIN DESMOND'S VOICE!
HERSHFIELD

I.—TO THE MINES!

Desmond, having captured Claude and Rosamond, is now about to condemn them to the worst fate possible in dread Siberia. He will take them to the salt mines, where the wretched convicts must toil incessantly, hidden forever from the light of day and driven by cruel guards selected from the Czar's most desperate soldiers.

II.—DOWN THE SHAFT.

Gotacoff, the villainous Russian assistant of Desmond, the international crook, is now, under the villain's orders, lowering Claude and Rosamond down the shaft of the mine, from which the lovers are never to return, if Desmond's plan is carried out. Even at this dread moment Claude is defiant and vows vengeance on Desmond.

III.—SETTING THE TRAP.

Twenty miles away from the salt mine Desmond, rifle in hand, is lying half hidden behind a big rock beside a little pond of fresh water. It is not easy to see his object, but undoubtedly the villain's scheme is in some way connected with the fortunes of Claude and Rosamond. So we must look further along the pictures.

IV.—THE ESCAPE.

Once in the salt mine it does not take Claude long to plan an escape. He gets Rosamond to hide herself in a car of newly mined salt and then conceals himself in it. He knows that no one has seen them and that when the car is hoisted to the surface it will be an easy matter to escape across country.

V.—THE THIRST DEMON.

Half choking with the salt they have swallowed, Claude and Rosamond feel all the tortures of thirst as they quickly beat it across the plain. It is the one hope of the lovers to get quickly to some place where they can get a long draught of fresh water to alleviate their terrible sufferings from the thirst demon.

VI.—SURPRISED.

At last! A little pond of fresh, clean water! Eagerly Claude and Rosamond stoop to gulp up the reviving fluid; but little do they know that right beside them is the cruel figure of Desmond, who knew that all escaping prisoners reach that pond. He captures them, and tomorrow we shall see their fate.

Bluebeard's Chamber.

"BUT, Fraulein! I beg your pardon! You cannot go up! It is against orders!" protested Johann, backing away before the advance of the two women.

"Ha! I can't, can't I?" retorted the older of the two sarcastically. "Go away! I do anything I wish here! Come, Teri!"

Taking the younger girl's hand, she swept past the protesting servant, who lacked equally the strength of character to fulfill his master's orders, and the philosophy which accepts the inevitable.

"No, no! You must not!" he pleaded, following them upstairs.

"Ha! Come, Teri."

She pushed open the library door and swept into the room, dragging her companion with her, and still followed by the complaining Johann. She was a woman who would have been noticed anywhere, and would have been likely to trample on the orders of better men than a dull German servant. She was dressed with such art and carried herself with so commanding an air that it was impossible to guess at her age. She might have been anywhere between twenty-five and thirty-five years old. The voluptuous fullness and rounded curves of her splendid figure seemed to indicate a nearness to the latter, rather than the former age. But there was not a line or wrinkle in her wonderfully translucent skin and her great dark eyes flashed with all the fire and sparkle of youth as she scornfully dismissed the servant. Her features were small and excellently formed, which aided the illusion of youth. Her mouth was small, the lips smooth and exquisitely cut, and her small, rounded chin was thrust out as an outpost of a determined will.

Her companion, a pretty blonde girl of about twenty-five, would have been favorably noticed by herself, but she seemed colorless and uninteresting beside the splendidly fascinating creature, who towed her and apparently had complete mastery over her.

The chief of the intruders informed Johann that he could go, but he did not act on the information.

"Fraulein, have you an appointment with my master?" he insisted.

"Appointment!" The young woman broke into a short, scornful laugh. "What do you mean? I am mistress here! A little more of your insolence and I will have you discharged!"

The German character is commendable in its infinite capacity for blindly obeying orders. Johann stuck to the losing fight.

"But the library is private, and"——

"Not another word! There is nothing private to me! When did you master say he would be home?"

"He is at home," replied Johann, a little nervously.

"So you lied to me!" the woman blazed up. "I will have you discharged. Where is your master?"

"In——in his bath," replied Johann, with some hesitation. The anger disappeared instantly and the woman turned to her companion with a giggle.

"In his bath!" she said. Then she turned sternly to the servant again. "Why did you tell me downstairs that he was not at home?"

"It is against orders for anyone to come into this room when my master is not here," returned the servant doggedly. "I will have to tell him he has visitors."

"Not a word!" commanded the woman, so sharply that Johann suddenly stopped his march to the bedroom door like a soldier at the command of his officer. "We will wait his pleasure here. I know your master. He loves to linger in his dressing room. You may go!"

"Fraulein!"——

"Go!"

Johann gazed at her a moment, sighed, shrugged his shoulders and withdrew. With a triumphant toss of her head, the woman walked swiftly to the desk and opened a tin box of Japanese cigarettes.

"Have one?" She offered the box to her companion, who shook her head and sank into a chair. The woman lit one and took a few contented puffs.

A Beautiful Room

The girl addressed as Teri gazed about the room with interest. It was a large apartment, simply but expensively furnished. The big, flat-topped double desk, strewn with pamphlets and memoranda in Japanese characters was of solid mahogany. So was the big arm chair in which she sat and the big settee beside which stood a tall bronze electrolier of remarkable workmanship. There were windows on two sides of the room that looked into a beautiful garden. Between and below the windows were book shelves filled with heavy, dry-looking books, which gave off the odor of figures and satistics even through the glass doors. A great rug, soft and thick as moss, covered the polished floor. The large and beautifully flowered cushions on the settee sounded the only note of ease in the austere apartment. She noticed that the working chair at the desk was particularly small, stiff and uncomfortable looking.

She looked up at the older woman who was resting on the arm of her chair.

"Tell me, Illona," she said, wonderingly, "is it true that you are to be——"

"Sh-h-h!" interrupted the other, laying a finger on her friend's lips and throwing a quick look at the heavy curtains, which cut off the view of a bedroom. "You can never tell when he is likely to appear—in an instant. He is like a shadow on a cloudy day."

"But tell me, Illona," insisted the girl, lowering her voice, "are you really"——

"Don't talk! Smoke!" Illona pushed the cigarette between the girl's lips and lit another for herself. "Now you smoke yourself comfortable and I'll tell you all about it. When you see him you can tell me what you think of him. Simple little mice like you sometimes have big wisdom teeth!"

She smoked in silence for several moments, a dreamy look in her dark eyes.

"He must be awful nice from what you have told me," ventured Teri after a while.

"Nice," Illona flashed her a look of pity. "What a superlative word nice is with you!"

"Well, isn't he nice?" demanded the girl defensively.

Illona's eyes wandered to the window and far out away to the horizon beyond the city. She gave a little sigh and shiver.

"Is a rainbow 'nice?'" she said in a low voice, as if speaking to herself. 'Ten million miles away from you!"

Teri impatiently brushed the ashes off her cigarette. "I don't understand."

"Of course not!" agreed Illona, grimly. "No more do I. That is what makes it all so interesting."

The girl looked up at her, puzzled.

"Interesting?" she repeated.

"He is wonderful, Teri!" breathed the other, with a little catch in her breath. "With his folk-lore and his songs! And his voice like—like a flute played in the moonlight!"

"Oh, how nice—lovely!" exclaimed the girl, clapping her hands together in delight. But Illona went on in the same detached tone.

"If I could find his heart—his soul—the man in him! I would know what I could be to him—then."

Teri apparently did not understand or sympathize with these more subtle quests.

"It would be fine to live in a great house like this!" she exclaimed. "Mrs. Tokoramo! Such a funny name!" The girl gurgled in amusement but there was no answering smile from her friend.

"He won't marry," she said, a little wearily. "He has too much brain for that."

Teri appeared to reflect for a moment. "Could you love him?" she inquired, with a little hesitation.

"Perhaps. Sometimes," she said softly, her eyes still far away. "Sometimes he comes nearer to me than anything else on earth—and then he slips away and I wonder what he is. His eyes tell nothing. They are like lamps shining behind a mist. They are there!—but they tell nothing of the man! Can he love—can he hate?" She threw up her hands and turned to her friend with a shake of the head. "I don't know! My honest word Teri—a whole year, and I do not know!"

Something More

"He has been very good to you," remarked Teri, inconsequentially. With her manifestations of love ran rather to the concrete and visible than to the spiritual and invisible. Illona threw away her cigarette with a quick movement of impatience.

"There you are with that 'good' and 'nice' and 'fine' and 'lovely'!" she exclaimed. "I want something more than that—beyond anything you can think! To conquer him." She went on pacing restlessly to and fro. "To conquer him—or have him conquer me! One of us supreme! Yet," she shrugged her shoulders, "if I conquered him he could go, like the others! One after another they come, they go! They always have—they always will. Ah! I am sick of living!"

Teri said nothing because she could think of nothing to say. These outbursts were not new to her. Suddenly Illona stopped in a feverish walk and her face lit up as if she had been struck with a wonderful thought.

"I have an idea, Teri!" she exclaimed delightedly. "Suppose you try to win Tokoramo away from me!"

Teri dropped her cigarette and stared at her friend.

"If you please," she said coldly, "I do not do such things!"

"But I should like to know if he is constant!" urged Illona, her eyes sparkling. "It would be laughable to think of his playing you and me against each other!"

"Really!" said her friend in the same tone. "You have at times a queer sense of humor."

Illona eyed her friend with open amusement. "You would make an ideal couple," she decided. "Two such solemn, serious souls——"

"Please be still!" interrupted Teri. "I don't know what is the matter with you today."

"But why not?" insisted Illona.

"What's the use of talking? He loves you!"

A swift change passed over Illona's handsome face.

"So! Ah!" she cried with sudden anger. "Otherwise you would take him, but you are afraid of me! Ah! Just like you! After all, I think you are just the one to do it! What else could I expect of you!"

Teri's blue eyes opened wide at this fiery storm.

"But it was you who first suggested it! she protested.

"Never mind," cried Illona, advancing on her friend with her little hands tightly clenched. "You know you would steal him if you had a chance. But you won't. You won't have him until I am through!"

"Illona! As if I ever thought of loving him!"

"Ha! ha!" You"——

"But, Illona!"

"I don't"——

And they jabbered at each other until Teri burst into tears and sank back into her chair. Instantly Illona was all contrition. She ran to her friend and laid a hand affectionately on her shoulder.

"There, there! Don't cry!" she begged. But the sobs continued with uninterrupted violence. "Don't cry!" she cried, angrily, with a fierce shake of the shoulder under her hand.

"I—will t-too if I want—to," sobbed the girl.

"All right! Cry then!" snapped Illona. Then she laughed, pulled the girl's hands away from her eyes and kissed her on the lips.

"There! Now we are friends again!" The sobs subsided. They were silent for a little time and then Illona spoke in a voice of hopeless misery.

"Oh! Teri, if you only knew how miserable I am! How I want to find someone or something to—to— Oh, I don't know! Something to appease this gnawing in my heart!" Her eyes fell on the busy-looking desk. "If I could only know what he does, Teri! If I could only find out what he writes about, just to know something of him, but he won't tell—he won't tell me anything!" She picked up the loose sheets of paper and laughed. "Look at this funny scribbling! They write backward. Teri—just fancy!" she giggled. "He keeps his most important work locked up. He's very careful about it."

Baffling Secrets

She ran around the desk with a lively rustle of silk skirts and pulled upon a drawer.

"I've rummaged through these drawers so many times just to find some little thing that I could know about him!" she exclaimed, rumpling up the contents and peering in. Teri followed her and peered over her shoulder.

"Illona, should you do that?" she asked timidly. "Oh, look at the money!"

"Yes, yes!" said Illona, contemptuously, as she pushed the gold pieces out of the way. "He has plenty of money—but who wants money?"

By this time Teri's childish curiosity was as fully aroused as her friend's, and they began a reckless ransacking of the desk. Everything was Japanese and fruitless. They were so absorbed in the search that they did not notice the parting of the portieres that opened into the bedroom nor hear the light cat-like step on the rug.

"Illona!"

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

ILLONA TELLS HER HOPES AND FEARS.

Teri was looking up at the older woman, who was sitting on the arm of the chair. "Tell me, Illona," she said, "is it true that you are to be"——"Sh-h-h!" Interrupted the other.

OUTLINE OF OPENING CHAPTERS

JOSHAKAWA, one of a band of Japanese Government secret agents in Berlin, while sipping tea in a cafe is told by KOBOHASHI, another Japanese secret agent, that TOKORAMO, one of the Mikado's chief aides, who is engaged on a most important work in Berlin for the Japanese Government, has fallen in love with ILLONA KERNER, one of the most beautiful women in Berlin, but also one of the most dangerous, and said to be the fiancee of ERNEST LINDENER, an artist, who, finding himself deserted by the young woman, has become a drunkard. Joshakawa and Kobohashi start for Tokoramo's apartments to warn him against the woman.

"THEN, Luana," frowned her husband in drunken disapproval, "why did you put down your glass and go?"

"Oh, I thought you all saw—it was not my glass!" The girl laughed in relief. "It was my finger-bowl!"

"Ha, ha!" mimicked the Captain in angry derision. "And I suppose you sneaked out just now and met your kanaka friends to sing a duet! That won't go down with me! I tell you I'm on!" And he emphasized the fact with another assault on the suffering table. "I won't have a man under me that's got a would-be kanaka queen hanging onto his neck, whispering in his ear and pouring ava down his neck! Wilson, I'm through with you—you can go!"

"What!" gulped Wilson.

"You can go!" repeated the Captain with unnecessary emphasis. "You go back to Puna and eat poi under the palm trees! That's all you're good for! Commissionaire to the United States—huh!"

Wilson came unsteadily around to him.

"Hold on, Hatch!" he pleaded. "You don't know what you're saying! I'm sure Luana is telling the truth. It isn't fair! You said you were a square man, Hatch——"

"I am!"

"Well, then, give me a chance for my life!"

"You life!" exclaimed Luana.

"All right—go ahead! Ask her!" commanded the Captain in slightly modified tones. Wilson turned to his wife.

"Luana, have you been meeting Kanakas here secretly?"

"Ae!" replied the girl promptly, "but no secrets. I going to tell you. Hoheno came"——

Wilson started. "Hoheno!"

"Yes, Hoheno!" snapped the Captain. "That back-biting man shark!"

"Ah, no, no!" protested Luana. "He came just to see me and to ask me to go home. And I—I promised him that maybe—maybe we go back."

"You'll do that all right!" declared the Captain, grimly.

"No, no, Hatch! Please—just a minute!" begged Wilson. Then he turned angrily to Luana once more.

"So, Luana, you are scheming to bring me back to nothing—to spoil my career—my life! His voice rose in virtuous indignation.

"Why, man," said the captain with brutal contempt, "you spoiled your life when you married that Kanaka woman!"

"Your life—spoil!" echoed Luana.

"But Hatch, if you will listen"——

"You shut up and listen to me!" interrupted the captain. Luana sprang at him with flashing eyes.

"No, you listen to me!" she cried, with sudden fury. The captain turned mottled pink and fell back a step as if he felt that he was in danger of a physical assault. "You call me kanaka woman—all right! But I tell you this: I am as good as you! And I am better, because I have a heart inside of me, instead of a money-bag!" She struck her breast fiercely with her clenched hand. "What do you care for your country or your people—nothing! Just money! Money! You call me kanaka woman, but I—I am a Hawaiian princess! And for my people and for the man I love—right now I would die!"

"Ah, Paula!" she sobbed. "You believe that!"

The captain swallowed hard, shook his shoulders and turned to the house, switching off the lights as he reached the porch.

"Well, Wilson," he said over his shoulder, "if your wife is through with her insults, take her and get out!" And he marched into the house and closed the door behind him.

"Now," demanded Wilson in a weak whine, "what did you say that for?"

"But, Paula," protested Luana, tearfully, "he called me"——

"Oh, shut up! You didn't have to howl that you were an Hawaiian princess. And you called him a money-bag—now you've done it!"

"Ah, I see—alone," murmured Luana, hopelessly. And for the first time her brave, warm heart knew despair. Mahumahu crept to her weeping.

"Ah, my Luana! I hear—trouble!"

"Ae, trouble—trouble! But the last—the last!" With a dry sob of anguish the girl bowed her head and pressed her clenched hands to her cheeks. Mahumahu turned a sickly, dirty white.

"You mean?" she whispered in terror and awe.

Luana slowly nodded twice. "Ah, Mahumahu! I see it all now! Hewahewa was right when he said it was tabu. But I foolish! I think just my arms and lips could make everything right. But I was wrong!" She raised, full of dumb, hopeless longing toward the door where he had vanished. "Oh, my lover-husband! I spoil you life—ae! Ah—h!" this was a hysterical, dreary little laugh. "I said I was a princess and as good as they are. But I lie! I am a fool! It's not the color—that only shows what's outside. I am a Hawaiian princess and yet I will never be white. It is tabu—tabu to my son and my son's son and after that—tabu! Oh, but he shall be free—free to be the big white man he wished! Ae, that is the best way!"

"You mean?" repeated Mahumahu in the same tone.

"My people!" exclaimed Luana, her eyes shining like stars. "In far away Puna they wish a woman to sacrifice to save them from Pele. Well," she added calmly, "I will be that woman!"

Mahumahu grovelled at her feet in an agony of grief.

"Ah—h! Then you know—you know!" she sobbed, unable to understand and the heroic grandeur of soul that had inspired the sacrifice.

Luana heard in dull wonder.

"What?" she asked.

"The prayer of death!" moaned the old woman faintly.

Luana startled and drew a long breath.

"Ah! Then it is—against me," she said slowly.

"Ae!"

"So that was it. Hewahewa made the prayer of death against me." She paused and gazed off into the darkness. "And why?"

"Ah, no; no, no!" pleaded Mahumahu.

"Why? Don't lie to me! Tell me!" commanded the girl fiercely. "You—defy—Pele!"

"But he could not! Over what of my body did he have to pray?"

"The nails of your fingers."

"The nails of my fingers," repeated Luana slowly, gazing down at her well-manicured hands.

"Ah, no, no!" cried Mahumahu, seizing them. Instantly she dropped them and sprang up with a scream of terror. "Ah—h, they cold!"

Luana caught her breath and the color left her face.

"What! You think it begins now!" Slowly, fearfully she crossed her hands on her arms and then raised them to her face. Mahumahu watched fascinated with horror.

"I my—hands! Cold they are!" whispered the girl. "Nothing can I feel!" Her face was suddenly drawn and old as she touched it with the tip of a finger. "With my finger—nothing!"

"That candle!" cried Mahumahu hoarsely. "Try! It will not burn you!"

With jerky, mechanical steps Luana approached the table and slowly lifted a lighted candle with her left hand. A moment she hesitated and then with a sudden movement thrust the rigid index finger of her right hand into the flame!

One second, two, three, five, ten seconds passed and the girl gave no sign. She stood like a statue staring with wide eyes as the yellow flame licked around her finger which sent to the brain no warning of the blistering destruction. With a shuddering moan of horror Mahumahu sank down again and buried her face in the grass.

Slowly Luana drew her finger out of the flame.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

STRIKERS WIN IN SLATER MILLS

WEBSTER, April 30.—The strike committee named by the Slater mill operatives who walked out last week, met today to act upon the notices posted at the three Webster mills and the Wuskanut mills in Farnumsville, all owned by the Slater Corporation, that a five per cent. increase has been granted all employes in the Slater mills, to take effect May 6. It is expected that the increase will be accepted and that the strikers will return to work on Monday next.

This is the outcome of the strike of the operatives at the cotton mills at North Webster. The operatives there went out for five per cent. increase on Tuesday last.

Annual April Sale of

Exchanged Pianos

This annual event has become notably historic. Its real economic significance is widely known and needs no explanation to anyone acquainted with the Norris methods. Most of the pianos are exchanged instruments, which have come from the better homes of Greater Boston. We took them at their cash value and accepted many of them as a payment applied on the purchase of one of our Autopianos. Many of the pianos would never have been parted with except for the desire of the owner to have an Autopiano, which combines all the features of the most up-to-date modern instrument. Every piano is of reputable make—put in the best possible order by our own skilled craftsmen, fully guaranteed by us, and may be exchanged within a year if for any reason you find it unsatisfactory. For a little money you can buy a piano that will give you years of service and a rich, sweet, pure quality of music never possible in the cheap new pianos. RETURNED RENTALS, FACTORY SAMPLES, SPECIAL DESIGNS AND PLAYER-PIANOS, ALL IN PERFECT CONDITION AND PROTECTED BY OUR GUARANTEE.

Exceptional Inducements in Both Prices and Terms. Cash or Credit.

Fellow Citizens: It Is Your Duty as Well as Your Right to Express Your Preference for President Today. Don't Wait to Be Dragged to the Polls.

VOTE FOR CHAMP CLARK

HAVE you voted today?

The primary election this day is as important an event to those who wish to see the government turn back to the control of the people as the final election in November.

The new law passed by the present Legislature gives the citizens of Massachusetts for the first time in its history the right and imposes upon them the duty of making their preference among the candidates for President within their own party; and the delegates chosen to attend the convention from Massachusetts will recognize this moral obligation and obey the preference you have expressed.

Before the passage of this law, the delegates went to the national conventions and did about as they pleased. To pledge them seemed to be throwing a slight cast of uncertainty and disparagement upon them.

But the real relation between principals and agents, which is the relation of the voters to their delegates, has at last been recognized, and no delegate now takes it as a personal reflection if he is called upon by his constituents to act otherwise than according to his personal opinions.

We are testing today one of the first long steps in advance towards a REAL DEMOCRACY, in which the majority shall always rule and in which a minority shall have a just proportion of its share and influence.

Again the AMERICAN asks, HAVE YOU VOTED YET?

If not, are you sure that you will be able to vote if you postpone it much longer?

It is your indifference, if you are the man who has not voted, which makes it necessary to spend so much money in political campaigns.

The political parties have to send you circulars, hold rallies for you with brass bands and red lights quite as much to arouse you from your inertia as to convince you. Then they have to convey you to the polls in a carriage.

This is why organized wealth and privilege control the election machinery.

This is why we have our HIGH COST OF LIVING.

You who will not vote until you are dragged to the polls, you oblige your party to send for you an automobile and to incur those other large but necessary expenses incurred in every hard-fought campaign where democracy attempts the fortress of privilege.

Mr. Procrastinating Voter, take your burden from off the back of your party by going to the polls on your own legs early this morning. Give the country the benefit of your best judgment concerning the candidates for nomination for President.

Fellow citizen, if you have not voted, vote at once.

If you believe Champ Clark should be nominated, if you believe that a man who has been thirty years in public life, steadily advancing in political experience, knowledge and wisdom, who has remained as true to his party principles as the magnetic needle to the pole, who extends a clean hand which has never been once behind his back, for your suffrages, go, then, to the polls, Mr. Democrat, and VOTE FOR CHAMP CLARK as the Democratic nominee for President.

On the Sea of Life

Icebergs are a dreadful danger in the "lanes" across which the transatlantic liners pursue their way. They are dangers difficult to detect. To avoid them the liner must take a longer and more difficult course, and her officers must exercise ceaseless vigilance. So in the course which the young man takes on the sea of life. The career-wrecking bergs of Indifference and Dissipation are likely to drift across his path. If he does not take the more arduous "lane"—the longer but safer course; if he does not keep a vigilant lookout; does not stay in charge upon the bridge of the good ship Self—wreck is inevitable. And the ocean of Failure is very deep.

Fines for Working Girls—and Other Workers

The Law Should Forbid Them. Employers Should Find Other Means for Accomplishing Results. Fines Simply Mean Robbery by the Employer

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner

We print part of a letter from a young woman who does not wish to have her name mentioned.

Editor AMERICAN

Dear Sir—At the present day there is in existence a firm which employs quite a number of girls, especially in he office, for clerical work, filing, [illegible] This firm has a set of laws to [illegible] these girls. One of the laws [illegible] deduction of five cents from [illegible] y of any girl who makes [illegible] regardless of the cause or [illegible] nance of the error.

For example, take the clerk who writes all day long. If this clerk puts an "e" in place of an "i" in a name or word, five cents is deducted. Allowing seven errors a day for six days, $2.10 is taken from a salary of not more than $9.00 a week. Of course, on some days the deduction is greater, on others it is smaller. By continually breeding fear in her mind and an effort to be over-careful, it eventually causes her to make a greater number of mistakes. This is an imposition and is akin to highway robbery.

Ninety per cent, of these clerks turn in their weekly earnings for home expenses and help maintain many a family which is always in dire need of assistance.

Yours very truly, A. Z.

The infliction of fines upon working people, especially upon women and children, should be forbidden by law—AND THE LAW ENFORCED.

The infliction of fines is illegal in spirit. An employe wilfully careless should be dismissed. Nothing justifies the taking from hard-working people of part of their earnings.

The employer should understand that he does not employ an infallible automatic human machine for six or eight or ten dollars a week or less.

The employer would not care to be fined by his customers—especially arbitrarily and without a hearing.

The system of fines is convenient, as it puts money in the employer's pocket ALWAYS, and helps managers of departments to keep down expenses.

But fines for employes are dishonest. They are cowardly, for the employer inflicts the fine because he knows the employe dare not resent it.

Employes should form organizations for self-defense and fight for their rights in this particular matter among others even more important.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

WE had sum moar Acrosticks up to the house last nite. We had sum onst beefoar & Pa ran out, but beefoar the ladies caim last nite Ma toald Pa that if he ran out aggena she wuddent let him go to the boxing match next week. Pa had bought his tickets for the boxing match & he had invited a frend, so he got scared rite away & sed that he wud stay. Poor Pa, I know that he doesnt like to heer Acrosticks & I know that he doesent cair for moast of the club wimmen that cums to see Ma, but Ma is kind of harsh sumtimes, beekaus it does Pa good.

Pa promised to be good & not maik fun of the club ladies. In fact, he toald Ma, if you will give me yure sollem word that you will let me go to the fite & let me stay out as late after the fite as I wish, I mite eeven maik up a Acrostick myself.

Wen the ladies caim Pa was in the library maiking up his Acrostick. I had to stay in the parlor & help Ma receeve the ladies. Ma sed that she always reelled on me to help out.

Thare has to be one reel gentelman in the fambly, Bobbie, she toald me.

The first lady that got up to read her Acrostick read this:

The gratest man we have today
And perhaps the gratest of all time
Fights for the country nite & day
The strength of him is quite sublime.

All of the ladies clapped hard & sed: Oh, isent that clever; she meens Mister Taft.

Then a other lady got up & this is the Acrostick she red:

Whither roamest thou from Jersey
Into what remotest region?
Let us for thy safety pray
Since thy friends are almost legion.
O thou learned, learned man,
Never join no Chinese clan!

Isent that just perfectly dear? sed one of the ladies. She meens Wilson, the Guvnor of New Jersey. Isent that splendid?

Jest then Pa caim in & sed Ladies, I do not wish to intrude, but I have a littel Acrostick that I shud like to read to you. If you will give me a minnit of yure attenshun, I shall read it now.

By all meens, by all meens, sed one of the ladies; let us hear it. So Pa read:

When the country needed men,
Hardy men that loved to fite,
Into battel plunged thou then
Thru a shour of dynamite.
Ever climbing up some hill

Haughty, brave, a foe to fear,
Other soljers got a chill,
Useless than to volunteer.
Sage & statesman, scrapper, seer,
Ever shall thy name be dear.

But that isent a man's naim, sed one of the ladies. That spells White House.

I know, sed Pa, but I was jest kidding you old gals & Mister Rusevelt.

Opinion of an Old Shipbuilder

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Every ocean steamer has bulkheads, each bulkhead has a door. These doors are never shut in port or out of port. Each steamer has a double bottom for water ballast. The more bulkheads there are in a boat prevents the boat from hogging, and the doors being kept shut it's impossible for the ship to sink. These bulkheads should run fore and aft and transverse, built like a beehive. Take the hint from an old Clyde shipbuilder, who has wrought on the service board, and knows every line. And were the truth known, every bulkhead door on the Titanic was left open, and when she went down she went down bow first, as the weight of water was at the bow.

Yours fraternally,

MALCOLM ROBERTSON.

The War on Fraud

If We Throw Away the Results of Science, What Shall We Gain in the End?

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

GOOD sometimes comes out of evil, and it is hopeful that this will prove to be true in the case of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, who, driven by low politics, official indifference, and the influence of protected and selfish "interests," from his post at the head of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture, but not weakened in his determination that the people shall be guarded against fraudulent drugs and foods, now takes his place in the ranks of the open fighters for honesty, purity and the sacred rights of life, as contributing editor of Good Housekeeping Magazine, where he can be sure of steady, unswerving support in his war on frauds which the government is either too weak, or too unwilling, to suppress.

War Will Go on Because It Is Fought in the Name of Science.

This war will go on because it is fought in the name of science. It has the approval and the support of every chemist worthy of confidence, although, unfortunately, there are too many men who write "D. C.," or "M. D.," or "Ph. D." after their names, who are willing, for a consideration, to serve the interests of those who pile up money by adulteration, dishonesty, deception, cold storage, false weight, false labels and the use of poisonous "preservatives" and cheap substitutes (which are cheap only for those who make and sell them).

The public is entitled to be protected against EVEN A REMOTE CHANCE OF POISONING in its food. The physiological effects of such preservatives as benzoic acid are still under investigation. Chemists of standing differ in their opinions about it. Dr. Wiley has pronounced its use to be highly objectionable. A German chemist has recently undertaken to defend it, USED IN SMALL QUANTITIES, and for particular purposes. Very well, then, shall the public be subjected to a probable danger to health and life while this investigation is going on, and before the layman, or even the chemist, can be certain what the ultimate outcome is to be? Shall manufacturers of artificially preserved food be allowed to continue to stuff the people with substances which competent scientific authority has declared to be dangerous because certain other investigators have not yet made up their minds as to HOW MUCH OF IT WILL KILL? As well tell a man on a sinking ship after the stokers have rushed to the decks in flight from the incoming water: "Stay awhile before you put on your life preserver; I have not yet measured the rate of rise of the water."

Or say to a child playing with a triangle-headed serpent: "It looks bad, but wait until I have tested its venom; perhaps A VERY LITTLE OF IT wouldn't hurt you."

German Scientist Tries to Defend Benzoic Acid as Preservative

The same German chemist who tries to defend benzoic acid as a preservative for certain things, nevertheless adds: "No one, EXCEPT, PERHAPS, A FEW MANUFACTURERS, has ever dreamed simply of a permission to add benzoic acid to foods. On the contrary, there cannot be much doubt that for meat and meat preparations BENZOIC ACID AND BENZOATES SHOULD BE PROHIBITED. They have little preservative power and when mixed with other substances (phosphates) they help to preserve a FRESH COLOR WHILE THE DECOMPOSITION GOES ON. Like sulphates, therefore, they GIVE A DECEPTIVE APPEARANCE OF BETTER CONDITION, and according to the Heffter-Abel decision, even a slight odor of putrefaction of mince meat is MASKED OR REMOVED by the admixture of 25 per cent of benzoic acid or benzoates."

To take only one other of the innumerable dangers against which Dr. Wiley is fighting—tuberculous milk, which spreads the seeds of consumption—read, in the Good Housekeeping Magazine for May what he himself says of the remarkable case of the "cunningly framed law" by which the Legislature of Kentucky was recently hoodwinked, a law which, under a pretense of fairness, threw open that great cattle-raising State to a frightful peril, from which it has, temporarily at least, escaped through the enlightened action of Governer McCreary in vetoing the iniquitous bill.

Politics and "Interests" Cannot Interfere With Dr. Wiley Now

Kentucky, unfortunately, is not the only State in the Union where selfish interests unite to deceive even the lawmakers—if, in fact, they do always deceive them instead of buying them—simply in order to put money in their pockets, without the least care for those who suffer from their wickedness. The danger exists in every State. There is not a law on the statute books, intended for the protection of the health and lives of the people, which somebody is not trying to have repealed or nullified. There was a great sigh of relief when the laws for pure foods and pure drugs were finally established, but the underground workers, whose pockets had been touched, were soon busy undermining the structure, and one of the results is seen in the resignation of their most powerful enemy, whose hands were so tied that he could no longer effectively strike at them with the power of the government behind him.

But Dr. Wiley is strongly intrenched now, where politics and the "interests" cannot interfere with him, and with his competent corps of scientific assistants, we shall see whether he cannot win the battle for the people.
